

North Vietnamese Defend Military Stronghold in Laos

(c) New York Times News Service
VIENTIANE, Laos — Lao government forces and North Vietnamese soldiers are engaged in a deadly struggle for control of the high mountain tops overlooking this strategic valley midway between the royal capital Luang Prabang and the North Vietnam border.

"The situation is critical," — valley commander Col. Khamp-hai said as he bent over his map in his bamboo dugout atop a mist-shrouded mountain top. "We are surrounded," he added, pointing to red flags on the map denoting Communist positions.

Below a pair of carrion birds circled and the wind occasionally carried up the stench from 58 North Vietnamese dead. Nearby, a mine thudded and a government machine gunner loosed off a burst to clear his weapon.

One young lieutenant showed a bullet-torn bamboo patch a scant few yards from his trench where 24 more North Vietnamese lay buried under fresh-dug brown earth. The officer displayed two pictures taken from one of the bodies. One showed a group of eight Vietnamese in North Vietnamese army uniforms standing against a cliff. The other two wore pith helmets.

The battle started last week when the Communists attacked Nam Bac and its stronghold, the Kou Mountain, and the Lao government simultaneously launched its forces to the west to nibble other pieces of territory from the Communists' grasp and consolidate its hold on Nam Bac, which the government captured last October after six years of Red domination.

Nam Bac is set in the heart of Communist-controlled territory. To date, a week of sporadic, occasionally heavy fighting has cost North Vietnam 110 dead by body count. The Lao army has lost at least 31 dead, while 112 wounded lie in Luang Prabang hospital.

Nam Bac is important because it is a base for strong government force deep in Communist territory and because it is astride the traditional North Vietnamese invasion route to Luang Prabang.

The region is also a major rice-growing area.

Reliable military sources say the Lao army had done "not too badly" in the sporadic fighting, which continues. The Lao even managed to capture an old airstrip west of Nam Bac at a minor cost of two dead and seven wounded.

The Lao army is here in strength. One reason for its good showing against the well-disciplined North Vietnamese seems to be because there is nowhere to retreat to—the territory all around is Communist-controlled.

WARREN COUNTY
An eight-year-old girl and a 54-year-old woman were killed on Route 69 one-half mile north of Sugar Grove when the auto in which they were riding went off the road and struck a bridge abutment. It raised the county's 1967 traffic toll to four. Page One.

Searchers at the Akeley bridge over Conewango Creek failed to find the body of a Lakewood man, presumed to have drowned there one week ago. The man was reported missing March 10 and his auto and personal effects were found at the bridge. Page A2.

PENNSYLVANIA
Edward Martin, a strong anti-Communist as a senator and once governor of Pennsylvania, died yesterday after having been hospitalized for a week following a heart attack. Governor Shafer ordered flags flown at half-mast throughout the Commonwealth in his memory. Page B1.

THE NATION
The milk withholding action of the National Farmers Organization brought the threat of poisoned milk in Wisconsin. Police said they received a postcard warning that arsenic had been poured into a tanker of milk in Madison. The postcard said it was "too bad that some people have to die to get us higher prices for our milk." Page A-2.

Senators were worried on the eve of the Guam conference that the talks would lead to escalation of the war. Among those expressing such fears were Mike Mansfield, Senate majority leader, and J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee. Page One.

THE WORLD
The conference itself started with the meeting of President Johnson and South Vietnamese officials. The Vietnamese had in their pockets plans for a "sanitary zone," which would divide Southeast Asia from Thailand to the South China Sea. The zone would be bulldozed into a perimeter which could be defended against infiltration. Page One.

In the Vietnam war, B-52 bombers made seven raids in one day over the weekend, taking to the air and finding targets with the aid of computers. It was the first time the computer system had been used in the war. Page A-3.

SPORTS
Roger Slocum and Randy Rossman won titles at the Junior Olympic wrestling tournament at DuBois over the weekend and will advance to the State tourney at Greensburg in two weeks. Slocum breezed through the 100-pound class, winning four decisions, and Rossman registered a second period fall to take the unlimited crown. Page A6.

DOUBLE-FATALITY AT SUGAR GROVE
Youngsville ambulance crewmen remove the bodies of an eight-year-old girl and a 54-year-old woman from the scene of yesterday's fatal accident. The 1961 automobile hit the bridge abutment on Route 69 one-half mile north of Sugar Grove. The driver, Miss Carrie V. Anderson, and Donna Olson were killed. Kimberly Olson, 6, was hospitalized in WCA Hospital, Jamestown, for a broken jaw, internal injuries, and deep cuts on her knees. She is in serious condition. (Photo by Mahan)

ON EVE OF CONFERENCE

LBJ Arrives at Guam For War Conferences

BY MAX FRANKEL
(c) N.Y. Times News Service
AGANA, Guam — President Johnson and his principal advisers arrived here this morning after a 21-hour flight from Washington for a brief but intensive strategy conference on Vietnam.

The President and his party were scheduled to meet throughout the day and evening with Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and a delegation of South Vietnamese leaders.

The President's plane touched down at 10:45 a.m. (7:45 p.m. yesterday EST) in brilliant sunshine. A crowd of about 800 people broke into applause as Johnson emerged bareheaded, followed by his party. The South Vietnamese delegation arrived 20 minutes later.

Saigon Suggests 'Sanitary Zone'

By R. W. APPLE JR.
(c) N.Y. Times News Service
AGANA, Guam — The South Vietnamese delegation to the conference with President Johnson arrived here today prepared to present a radical new proposal for the control of infiltration from North Vietnam.

Although they support the bombing campaign against military targets in the north, Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and his fellow generals are convinced that it, alone, will not suffice. They take the same view of the mining, artillery bombardment and naval gunfire efforts undertaken recently by the United States.

To halt the flow of troops into South Vietnam, the generals reason, it will be necessary to create a "sanitary zone" halfway across the southeast Asian peninsula. They favor the immediate deployment of at least five allied infantry divisions in southeastern Laos.

Together with the U.S. Third Marine Division, now operating just south of the Demilitarized Zone within South Vietnam, the five new units would hold a fortified line almost 100 miles long, according to the South Vietnamese proposal. The line would be anchored at Savannakhet in the west and on the China Sea in the east.

The generals will propose that construction equipment be sent into the area to fell trees and erect defensive positions as far west as the Thai border. The defense would lie athwart the Ho Chi Minh Trail, a complex of jungle paths leading from North to South Vietnam.

The Vietnamese, however, are convinced President Johnson is unwilling to widen the scope of the land war while he is thinking increasingly of the presidential elections of 1968. Nor does the command of Gen. William C. Westmoreland view the proposal with enthusiasm.

One-Car Accident Claims Lives Of Girl, Woman

An eight-year-old girl and a 54-year-old woman were killed yesterday afternoon when the car in which they rode went out of control on Route 69 north of Sugar Grove and hit a bridge abutment.

Dead are Donna Louise Olson, 8, the daughter of Leonard Olson of Big Tree Road, RD 4, Jamestown; and Carrie V. Anderson, 54, also of Big Tree Road, RD 4, Jamestown.

In serious condition at WCA Hospital in Jamestown last night was the dead girl's sister, Kimberly, 6. She sustained a broken jaw, internal injuries, and deep cuts on her knees.

Miss Anderson and the Olson girl were pronounced dead at the scene of the accident, one-half mile north of Sugar Grove. Miss Anderson died of a fractured skull. The girl died of a broken neck. Deputy Sheriff R. E. Hagerty investigated for the coroner's office.

State police said the 1961 auto in which the three were riding went off the right hand side of the road and hit the bridge abutment. They apparently were going to Miss Anderson's home, three miles from Sugar Grove.

The accident happened at 2:40 p.m. Cpl. William Katner and Trooper Max J. Blizak investigated. The accident brought to four the number of road deaths in the county this year.

Miss Olson was born in Jamestown on Oct. 2, 1958. She is survived by her father; her mother, Mrs. Alfred Morton of Warren; a brother, Robert; her sisters, Patricia, Linda, Sharon and Kimberly, all of the Big Tree address; grandfather, Charles Olson of RD 1, Sugar Grove; and grandmother, Mrs. Mabel Olson of RD 4, Jamestown.

Westfield Fire Kills 2 Women

WESTFIELD, N.Y. (AP) — Two young women were killed yesterday in a fire that destroyed a two-story frame house three miles east of this Chautauque County village.

The bodies of Miss Kathy Eliason, 19, and Miss Dorothy Davidson, 21, both of Westfield, were found in the rubble of the destroyed house, said, Ralph Wallace, county coroner.

The house was occupied by Miss Eliason's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold O. Eliason, who were vacationing in Florida, sheriff's deputies said.

Neither the cause of the fire nor an estimate of the loss was determined.

Wallace said two young men who were with the women earlier, told him they had left Miss Davidson and Miss Eliason at the latter's home.

Miss Davidson apparently was to stay overnight with Miss Eliason, authorities said. The women were the only persons in the dwelling and apparently were asleep, they added.

Miss Davidson was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Davidson of Westfield.

Miss Davidson was an x-ray technician at the Cleveland, Ohio, Clinic and Miss Eliason was employed as a beautician in Erie, Pa.

Telephone Strike Talks Open

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Negotiators for Local 1944 of the Pennsylvania Telephone Union and the Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania met face to face yesterday for the first time since the 7,800 employees struck the company last Thursday.

The talks, held in the offices of the federal mediation and conciliation service, were guided by federal mediator Rex Marlowe and state mediator Ray Wright.

The session began in early afternoon and was mostly taken up with each delegation reviewing the position it held when contracts talks broke off at 6 p.m. last Wednesday.

There was a 50-minute meeting between the two sides, but it was reported that no counter-proposals were offered at the session.

At issue in the talks were wages, union security, and the length of the new contract, including a provision for a wage reopener clause.

The union, which represents operators and various other employees, is affiliated with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. Nearly all the striking union's members are women.

Meanwhile, some 11,000 members of the Federation of Telephone Workers Installers, Linemen and Repairmen, continued to respect picket lines "where they find them," a union spokesman said.

Billions Spent on Research

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Pennsylvania member of Congress questioned yesterday the advisability of big federal expenditures for scientific and other research.

"We are spending $16 billion a year on research right now," said Rep. John H. Dent, D-Pa. "This is more than we are spending in our aid to elementary and secondary schools, institutions of higher learning, manpower training, the poverty program and impacted school districts."

He called the total research expenditure "fantastic." And said it could be the biggest waste of money in the nation's history.

Few members of congress, Dent said, are aware that after national defense, research is the next largest federal expenditure.

"I doubt if anyone can justify one-third of the amount for real and meaningful research programs," he said.

He said research programs are so far out of line that the appropriations committee should put the total package before congress for a separate vote instead of "hiding" the items in the various departmental appropriations measures.

Dent, a member of the house committee on education and labor, said so many departments of government are engaged in what he termed the "new status craze" of engaging in research that nearly 45,000 educators have left the teaching profession to participate in this endeavor.

Congressmen Fear Escalation

costs to this country. It will not, in my opinion, result in an acceptable society from the point of view of the Asians."

Mansfield said in a telephone interview here that he assumed the President would discuss "ways and means . . . of bringing about a better military solution to the situation" at the Guam conference.

Mansfield, unlike Fulbright, has remained on close terms with the President, while opposing escalation of the war. He emphasized, however, that his speculation on further escalation was based on his own judgment and not on any conversation with the President.

Mansfield predicted that after the Guam meeting additional American troops would be deployed in the Mekong Delta, "the heart of the Viet Cong organization, manpower and supplies," Humphrey, interviewed on the American Broadcasting Company radio and television program, "Issues and Answers," said that as far as he knew, "the requirements for military forces are being met now."

"Obviously, there will always be discussion when military leaders get together with the commander in chief as to the numbers, the force levels, that are required for a particular operation," he added.

Threaten Poison In Milk Fights

CHICAGO (AP) — A threat of arsenic-poisoned milk was under investigation in the Madison, Wis., area yesterday as the National Farmers Organization continued its campaign to boost prices paid to dairy farmers in 25 states.

While there was no definite word on whether milk prices were rising, there was no question that milk supply was shrinking as the campaign entered a fourth day. NFO members were dumping hundreds of thousands of gallons in dozens of locations.

Farmers "will sell their cows unless they can get a price increase," said NFO President Oren Lee Staley from his Corn ing, Iowa, headquarters.

Madison police said they received a postcard Saturday saying five pounds of lead arsenic had been dumped into a bulk milk truck.

Police said the postcard said, in part, "Tonight I put five pounds package of arsenic of lead potato bug killer in a bulk tank. A Madison milk producer. Some people might die. Such low prices for milk they can dump it all tomorrow."

Area residents were ordered not to drink milk bought or delivered over the weekend while police investigated to see if the card was a hoax.

Retail milk prices rose about two cents a quart in Omaha, but it was not certain that NFO action had anything to do with the increase. Prices dropped two to three cents a quart during a price war several months ago.

Staley said enthusiasm and attendance at county-level NFO meetings was on the rise. "The holding action has been tightening day by day," he said. "The determination of farmers is building."

"Farmers feel that if they can't get a price increase, they had just as well quit their dairy operations," Staley said. "They are adopting the attitude, 'no price, no production,' he added.

Sporadic violence continued to mar the action. Two shots were fired Saturday at a bulk milk truck in Richland County in southwestern Wisconsin. Nobody was hurt, but about 3,000 pounds of milk drained away.

An Indiana milk hauler, Bruce Scranage, told police a bullet pierced one of his trucks Saturday 40 miles north of Fort Wayne.

In Michigan, a milk hauler said bullets punctured five of his trucks since Friday night. Five farmers in the White Pigeon area said oil was poured into 750 gallons of their milk.

Pickets marched at a LaFayette County, Wis., cheese factory where deputy sheriffs were escorting milk haulers for fear of violence. NFO leaders in St. Lawrence County, New York, said they would begin picketing today.

The day's biggest reported dumping involved 60 southern Minnesota farmers and 100,000 pounds of milk. Those who attended the ceremony were served free milk courtesy of NFO-affiliated dairies.

Job Level Continues Record Low

Total unemployment in Pennsylvania was at its lowest recorded level for a February although rising slightly, according to Secretary of Labor and Industry William J. Hart.

Unemployed workers in February were estimated at $178,000, an increase of 2000 from January. The rate of unemployment remained the same as in January, 3.7 percent of the total civilian work force.

The current volume of unemployment reflects a reduction of 33,000 from February 1966. Unemployment last February was estimated at 211,000 and 4.5 percent of the civilian work force. The highest February on record occurred in 1959 when unemployment measured 528,000 and 11.2 percent of the work force.

According to Secretary Hart the increase in unemployment was attributed primarily to a rise in the number of new entrants and reentrants into the work force.

The national unadjusted rate of unemployment in February was 4.2 percent and the seasonally adjusted rate, 3.7 percent.

States Consider Oddities of Law

By CARROLL ARMOND

CHICAGO (AP) — In the little time they can spare from discussing taxes, state legislators give thoughts to such matters as the woolly mammoth and the prevalence of used beer cans.

Solons talk with some solemnity of a threat that bullfighting may catch on in New England, where seldom is heard an encouraging word like "ole."

In other U.S. legislative outposts, lawmakers are engrossed in Hawaiian visas for snakes and the question of whether a geode is a rock.

Their peers in Wyoming explored the credentials of a plant called halogeton to be the official state weed, and recoiled in horror. This botanical subversive is, they learned, a thoroughly un-American import from Siberia. Furthermore, it's lethal to livestock.

Horned toads, covered bridges and — inevitably, with spring so near — the birds and the bees have come in for considerable discussion.

A California assemblyman is sponsoring a bill to prohibit fat persons from seeking hypnosis as a means of losing weight. He says he opposes "quack hypnotists, not the legitimate professionals."

Although there has been no evidence of matadors invading New England, bullfighting has been outlawed in Rhode Island. A Maine representative wants her state to follow suit. She points out that they have rodeos in New England, that rodeos have bulls, and that one thing might lead to another.

"In a few years we'll be up to our knees in broken glass," declared Sen. Jack Davies of Minneapolis, Minn., a foe of litterbugs. So saying, he called for a law requiring dealers to redeem all throwaway glass bottles for three cents each. And in Michigan, a legislator wants the state's anti-litter law printed on all beer bottles and cans.

The California Senate has a bill that would require inspection of all beehives exported from the state. This would permit California to collect an inspection fee similar to those exacted by states receiving the hives.

Hawaiian legislators are considering letting in some snakes other than those that make it on their own from South American coastal waters. A bill would admit snakes to Hawaii only for public showing at zoos.

Wild life is of great concern to legislators generally. In Iowa, March 21 is Bird Day and all schools are required to teach something about birds.

Texas has proposals to protect its horned toad and tortoise from commercial exploitation. The toads, enemies of insects, are being used in costume jewelry. Tortoises are being exported to pet dealers in other states.

Nebraska has designated the mammoth, prehistoric ancestor of the elephant, as the official state fossil, the prairie agate as state rock and the blue agate as its gemstone.

But when the Iowa Legislature passed a law making geode the state rock, geologists declared geode is not a rock. (It's a stone with a cavity containing crystals of mineral matter.)

Some Pennsylvania legislators want an official "See Pennsylvania Covered Bridges Week." On the other hand, New Hampshire counterparts are trying to repeal an old law directing that town officials spread snow on the roadways of covered bridges so sleighs can skim across.

John D. Maziarz, a high school art teacher, wants the Massachusetts Legislature to relieve him of having to pay personal property taxes on the paintings he produces in the line of classroom duty.

In 1965, Maziarz says, he was taxed $80 for 80 paintings. A year later they soaked him $90 for 76 works. Why the increase?

"The assessor told me that paintings increase in value as they get older."

LicenseDeadline Is Wednesday

HARRISBURG (AP) — Warner revenue, has warned Pennsylvania motorists that applications for 1967 auto registrations may not be processed in time to meet the March 31 deadline if they are received by the Bureau of Motor Vehicles later than next Wednesday.

Deputy said that more than one million state motorists have not yet renewed their registration.

He also announced that the bureau would be closed next Friday and Saturday for the Easter holidays, leaving only nine working days to process applications before the deadline.

FAIL TO FIND BODY

Firemen from local volunteer units huddled behind a protective windbreaker of a recovery boat as they spent the weekend searching the cold waters of Conewango Creek near the Akeley bridge. Efforts failed to uncover any further clues in the disappearance of Leo Laughlin of Lakewood, N.Y., who is presumed to have drowned in that area. Less boats participated in the effort but the search will be resumed in the latter part of the week. Laughlin was reported missing March 10, and his car was found parked by the bridge. That Yellow Chicken Concerns Housewives

SALISBURY, Md. (AP) — Who likes a yellow chicken? Housewives, that's who!

That word comes from people in the know in this Maryland Eastern Shore community, in the heart of Delmarva poultry country.

Poultry industry sources say housewives are paying extra money to see a nice yellow color under the skin of a hen.

"If you don't produce that yellow color you don't have a product you can sell in this market," says William Stephens, president of the Delmarva Poultry Association.

"It's much more expensive than coloring with natural sources and somebody sure has to pay for it," Stephens adds.

Stephens points out that the chicken used to get its color naturally from corn gluten and alfalfa meals. But a vegetable coloring compound called Xanthophyll found in those feeds is not present in soybeans and meat meals used nowadays.

So where does the yellow come from? Why, they're feeding flowers to chickens.

Mexican marigold petals have been imported by the ton. It is mixed with chicken feed. And it is estimated that it costs an extra penny a pound to buy a chicken raised on flower petals.

Conference

airport to greet them, immediately offered them assurances that "America is committed to the defense of South Vietnam until an honorable peace can be negotiated." The President also assured them that the chance of American officials in Saigon would in no way alter American policies.

After the airport ceremonies, the heads of the two delegations drove into town for a series of conferences this afternoon and evening.

Ky and his associates were said to be in need of reassurance that the replacement of Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge by Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker would involve no change in U.S. policy or softening of negotiating terms toward North Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

Salmon has heard so much of Bunker's skill at compromise—particularly in arranging for the Dutch surrender of West Irian to Indonesia and for a broadly based coalition regime in the Dominican Republic—that they fear he may be coming to "sell out" South Vietnam's interests.

As he has made clear in several recent public statements at home, and plans to do once more in declarations here, Johnson has no intention of altering his basic tactics or objectives in the war. On the contrary, he will describe to the South Vietnamese his plan of applying ever greater military pressure on both the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese and will solicit their cooperation in forcing the pace of the so-called pacification program.

approved by the constituent assembly last night.

To demonstrate good faith with the assembly, as feelings have been ruffled by periodic squabbles over the draft constitution, Ky and Thieu were planning to bring several deputies with them to the Guam conference.

Another subject the Vietnamese leaders were expected to broach with the President are his intentions in appointing Ellsworth Bunker to replace Henry Cabot Lodge as American envoy to Saigon.

The more sophisticated Saigon politicians are aware of Bunker's reputation as a skilled compromiser. He was involved in helping to resolve Indonesia's West Irian dispute, the Yemen controversy and the 1965 crisis in the Dominican Republic.

Ky will certainly want to know how far the Johnson Administration is willing to go in search of peace.

The generals, moreover, will try to size up the dew deputy ambassador, Eugene Murphy Locke, who is to be at Guam, and the new pacification chief Robert Komer, whom they have known during his repeated visits to Vietnam in recent months.

Somaliland Freedom Voted Upon

DJIBOUTI, French Somaliland (AP) — French Foreign Legionnaires set up three barbed wire cordons around the African districts of Djibouti yesterday and Somali voters made their way to polling booths through barriers bristling with guns to decide French Somaliland's future.

Several hundred troops blocked off the Somali area of the capital following a brief flareup of violence during a referendum which started Sunday morning and will result in either independence or continued association with France.

Machine guns mounted on heavy trucks took up positions dividing the Somali quarter from the rest of the city. Somalis gathered angrily behind the barriers, waving fists at soldiers and shouting for independence. A few still trickled through to vote but the military presence appeared to be keeping many from the polling booths.

There was no immediate explanation from French officials for the army move.

Police moved in with batons and rifle butts to break up a proindependence demonstration outside a polling station earlier in the day.

About 50 demonstrators were arrested, herded into trucks and taken off to jail.

Vietnam Constitution Is Approved

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam's military leaders announced last night their approval of the draft constitution adopted unanimously Saturday by the Constituent Assembly. They said they would not propose any amendments.

This apparently cleared the way for a return to civilian government in South Vietnam.

The decision was taken by the military junta and the Cabinet only hours before Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu were scheduled to fly to Guam for a strategy conference with President Johnson and other top U.S. leaders. Ky had let it be known he wanted to take the completed document with him to show Johnson.

The constitution will become law when it is given final approval by the ruling Armed Forces Council. Such approval is considered certain after yesterday's action by the National Directorate, made up of 10 military leaders and 10 civilians.

The constitution as drafted by the 117-man Constituent Assembly provides that a president and vice president be elected within six months of the constitution's promulgation, and that national elections for a two-house Assembly be held within twelve months after that.

Jams Traffic
SALAMANCA, N. Y. — The top of a long trailer being hauled west on Wildwood Ave., slammed into the B & O Railroad underpass and became wedged there about 4:30 a.m. Thursday. Damage to the trailer was estimated at $12,000. Traffic over the route was tied up more than six hours.

Huge B-52 Bombers Hit South Vietnam Positions

SAIGON (AP) — Taking orders airborne from computers, U.S. B52 Stratofortresses battered Communist installations in South Vietnam in a near-record six raids over the weekend, a U.S. spokesman reported. The eight-engine jets took off from Guam, site of President Johnson's conferences with top U.S. and South Vietnamese leaders on the Vietnam war.

The use of the new computer technique was not explained in detail by the U.S. Command in Saigon, but one official said the computers make the big jets more flexible.

The computers and other electronic equipment aboard are programmed with a vast number of targets, making it possible for the Stratofortresses to revise the missions after they take off from Guam, the official said. In the past they left the island base with one target planned and could not be diverted.

The number of B52s based in the Western Pacific has been increased, permitting more raids which U.S. intelligence experts say are highly demoralizing to Communist troops.

Other U.S. warplanes, carrier-based, all-weather intruder jets, struck for the third time at North Vietnam's showpiece steel-fabricating plant at Thai Nguyen, 32 miles north of Hanoi. The 2.5-square-mile industrial complex was first raided March 10.

No U.S. losses during Saturday's air operations were reported.

Ground action in South Vietnam, overshadowed by the air war, was limited to small but occasionally intense skirmishes Saturday. Most of the fighting, as usual, was in the central highlands near the Cambodian border and in northern areas of the country.

In the scattered fighting, 97 Viet Cong bodies were counted, and U.S. casualties were reported to be 12 dead and 32 wounded.

The U.S. military spokesman said the B52s Saturday night and Sunday hit six suspected Communist base camps. One strike, only 18 miles west of Saigon, rattled windows in the capital.

The swept-wing jets have been flying in for an average of four raids a day in recent weeks. The heaviest B52 assault was Feb. 16, when seven targets were hit.

The Navy said its planes from the carrier Kitty Hawk, each capable of hauling sixteen 1,000-

Pope Paul Appeals For World Peace

By GERALD MILLER
VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI led Roman Catholics of the world into Holy Week on Sunday with a ceremony of blessing palms and a Mass in St. Peter's Basilica.

Later, from his window overlooking St. Peter's Square, he told a crowd of thousands: "Peace is not possible without the Cross."

The rituals of Palm Sunday symbolized the triumphal entry of Christ into Jerusalem a week before the Easter Resurrection.

In the Sistine Chapel, Pope Paul blessed the traditional palm fronds and distributed them to cardinals, prelates and representatives of 10 Catholic youth organizations in the Rome area.

The Pope walked in procession to the main altar of St. Peter's for a Mass and for a speech to 13,000 youngsters.

He told them it was "really the vocation of adolescents" to carry the Christian message of life and peace in the world.

He spoke of "a true peace that teaches men to respect one another, to cooperate in brotherhood and not found their hopes on hegemony and the arms race, a peace that believes in love and that frees from the closed and rebellious hearts of men unsuspected sources of good."

He also touched on a note of warning he has been sounding for many months against ideas unacceptable to the Church.

"It is up to you," he told the youths, "to dare the reconstruction of the modern world on the basis of faith. It is up to you to demonstrate that against the seducing and equivocal expressions of intellectual and moral decadence of so much of the modern world one can raise and substitute a youthful style, full of strength, beauty and joy and, if necessary, of sacrifice—a Christian style."

Catholic Priest, Former Nun Plan to Marry

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
MILWAUKEE — A Roman Catholic priest here plans to marry a former Catholic nun in a Lutheran ceremony next Saturday.

The priest is the Rev. Edmund L. Kurth, 35, of suburban Pewaukee, who taught at Pius XI Catholic High School here until last summer. His plan to marry Miss Shirley Weis, 34, now a public school teacher in Chicago, was revealed when they applied for a marriage license at the court house.

Kurth said he realized he would be automatically excommunicated and regretted that he could not be married in a Catholic ceremony.

Kurth said he hoped he could continue to serve the church as a teacher. Declaring that he hoped the Catholic Church would adopt a policy of optional celibacy for the priesthood, he said he did not know how many priests had married but estimated that only one in five such marriages had been revealed.

WATER ON THE KNEE

Q. What causes water on the knee and how is it best treated?

A. "Water on the knee" when there has been no physical injury is usually due to arthritis. Doctors usually advise joint support by means of an elastic bandage and restricted walking. If an excessive amount of fluid is present the physician may insert a needle into the joint and draw off the fluid.

EYE PLAGUES

Q. I am 51 and for several years have noticed raised deposits on my eyelids. They are getting larger and are very unsightly. Can they be removed?

A. Discuss this with your doctor. Generally speaking, such deposits indicate some disturbance in fat metabolism. They seem to occur more often in certain family groups than in others. Many such deposits can be removed but tend to come back. About the only reason for removal is cosmetic — they are harmless.

Answers appearing in these columns are of necessity brief and general and do not necessarily reflect the opinion of all physicians. Remember—the diagnosis and treatment of disease is the function of the patient's personal physician.

Not having a prescription filled to save money is like stopping the clock to save time. The unfilled prescription is the costliest one in relation to fast recovery from illness.

This Is Your Land'

Today, it has become a practice to mourn the passing of other and allegedly better times when the world was less crowded, seemed to move slower, and cost less to enjoy. These "good old days" are also remembered for the ample supply of open spaces where a person could get out-of-doors.

True, the population is on the rise, along with most prices, and the pace of day-to-day living has picked up. But, the out-of-doors and relaxing open spaces are still around in amounts greater than we may realize. They number many millions of acres and are known as the public lands. These are any lands managed by local, state, or Federal governmental agencies. Public lands range from National Parks to local picnic grounds.

Wise and full use of all public lands is the goal behind the observance of 1967 National Wildlife Week, March 19-25. The theme has been set as "This Is Your Land", in an effort to remind all of us that, as citizens, we are owners of the public lands.

Locally these lands may include vacant lots, unused school grounds, and nearby abandoned farms. Couldn't these locations be tomorrow's parks and recreation grounds? Across the state other tracts of public lands are idle. Supported by public interest and demand, they can

Meeting of the Minds

WASHINGTON—The longer I live in Washington, the more impressed I am with how smoothly the government runs.

The other day I was in a government office waiting to take a friend to lunch. He had just come out of a meeting and seemed pleased with how well it had gone.

"What was the meeting about?" I asked.

"I'm not sure what you mean," he said.

"Why did you have the meeting?"

"What a stupid question. What do you think we do in the government, just sit around and twiddle our thumbs?"

"I didn't mean that. What subject did you discuss at the meeting?"

"We discussed whether we should hold a conference or not."

"You had a meeting to discuss holding a conference?"

"Of course. And the consensus was that we should hold off on the conference until we meet again."

"Which, of course, will mean another meeting?"

"Now you've got it," he said.

MASON DENISON

Gallagher: An Unusual Man

HARRISBURG — It was one of those innumerable questions that all members of the House of Representatives periodically receive and it included that stock question about colleges attended.

But the answer that Rep. James J. A. Gallagher gave was anything but usual or stock. "All 14 state colleges, Penn State, Pitt, Penn, Temple," was the reply the Lehigh Valley Democrat penned.

Quite a list for a man who never saw the inside of a college as a student. But then, Representative Gallagher, a laughing, curly-haired Irishman, is a bit of an unusual man.

He's one of a handful of Democrats who in all probability will greatly influence Pennsylvania legislation this year because they have been able to gain unique positions in certain specialties.

For the Bucks County legislator, the specialty is higher education; that is, educational problems affecting colleges, universities, community colleges, nurses schools, trade schools and everything above high schools.

Mr. Gallagher gained his expertise—and "attended" the colleges he listed on the questionnaire—attended them as chairman of the House Higher Education Committee during the 1965-66 term of the legislature.

With the Republicans in control of the House, he should be just an ordinary member of the committee. But Irish James John Aloysius, it seems, finds it difficult to be ordinary about anything.

Already this term he can be largely credited with two of the smartest moves made by Democrats. First he helped put public pressure on the Board of Trustees of Penn State, literally forcing them to reverse course and approve aid under the National Student Defense Loan Act. The board had quietly dropped the federal government program late last year, but reinstated it in February.

Secondly, the irrepresible Mr. Gallagher nudged the Administration onto a warm tin roof over its own college scholarship program. Administration officials had promised to announce scholarship awards on March 1, but the Justice Department ruled they couldn't do anything until an appropriation was made. Ken Reher, in charge of the loan program, wrote letters to both Democrats and Republicans, pointing out his problem.

The Republicans did nothing. The Democrats also did nothing—for two weeks. Then, with the deadline approaching, Mr. Gallagher and Rep. Herbert Fineman, House Democratic Leader, introduced a bill to "help" the Republican Administration by appropriating the money. The move caught the GOP flat-footed. They could not repudiate their own top official; they couldn't let the Democratic bill go through. In the end, they capitulated by passing a resolution that the money would be appropriated.

Mr. Gallagher also has jumped the gun on the administration in other ways. He was the first to make public the date that scholarship awards would be announced. If you want to know how much any individual college in the Commonwealth has asked for in state aid, ask him. There are others who know, but he's about the only one who will talk.

He can tell you that Penn State wants nearly $50 million this year, compared to $40 million last year; that Pitt has asked for a jump from $9 million to $25 million; Temple from $12 million to $29 million; and Penn from $9 million to $12 million.

The reason the Lehigh Valley Irishman and some others like him will wield great influence even though the GOP controls the House is two-fold. First of all, he has become an expert in his field. Secondly, he did things in a bipartisan manner when he was in power; now he can—and does—expect reciprocity.

Others like him include Reps. John F. Laudadio and Thomas J. Foerster, in conservation; Rep. K. Leroy Irvis, civil rights and Rep. Martin P. Mullen, appropriations.

JIM BISHOP People Are the Town

The universal belief is that a community is composed of streets and buildings. It's people really. They make the avenues and the structures. They can give a town indelible character, and they can take it away.

In Nevada, I saw a town without people. It was a collection of cobwebs holding rust together. In Guatemala, there were Indians living in a forest. The jungle became a town.

The strong men of a community determine its character. They can run it up, or run it down. They give or they take.

Los Angeles is the biggest magnet in the world. It has the character of a multiphonic because it is many cities connected by a million fan belts. A pretty girl from Iowa can be dropped in the middle of Los Angeles and be lost forever.

I have a personal feeling for every town I have known. It isn't necessarily a valid assessment; just a feeling. Milwaukee, for example, is cold cuts and laughter and a foamy beer. Chicago, to my way of thinking, isn't a windy city. It's a lake, lights, a Loop and the looped.

Toledo is family. It's the Maumee River and chunks of opaque ice and chubby children. Pittsburgh is the bow of a ship sailing down two rivers at the same time. New York is a busted comb on its back with gray hairs of smoke hanging in the teeth.

Las Vegas is a neon alarm clock. It's a half-closed eye. Seattle is a jewel sparkling between the prongs of snowy mountains. San Francisco is accidental, oriental and accidental. Miami is Mecca on the American Plan. Jersey City is a politician with a toothpick.

Charleston, South Carolina, is a faded album. Boston is perpetual High Mass. Louisville is an aromatic barn. Presque Isle is a squeaky snowball with a French-Canadian accent. San Antonio is holding hands on a river of flowers.

Phoenix is the bottom of a chocolate saucer. Salt Lake City is Thanksgiving. La Junta, Colorado, is a street of empty windows watching a train go by. Reno is a star north of the action. Laramie is heads sticking out of macknaw collars. Cheyenne is muddy boots.

Savannah is a chipped headstone. Buffalo is bustle. Baltimore is one architect. Trenton is narrow streets and milds to match. Damariscotta, Maine, is a pair of white shoulders with an onyx pendant. Minneapolis is a back-slapping salesman. San Diego is a closet for war toys.

Hattiesburg, Mississippi, is a dead vine climbing a mildewed porch. Houston is a circus giant holding a passel of pygmies on each arm. Washington is a color postcard. Atlanta is a smoky terminal at dawn. Bayonne is a dirty finger pointing at Staten Island.

Providence is the fine print in a contract. Atlantic City is an old flapper. Cape Kennedy is a Roman candle at high noon. Portland, Maine, is a swinging gate. Richmond is a corsage of tobacco leaves. Albuquerque is an Indian blanket. Detroit is a barometer on wheels.

Glens Falls is a runaway refrigerator. Charlotte is a shiny soul. New Orleans is a fire-greed railing. Dallas is an ink-blot test in skyscrapers. Wichita is an infirmary for big birds. St. Paul is a cross in the sky. Clarksville, West Virginia, is a buck and no bus until tomorrow.

Newark, N.J., is a houseful of kids with no parents. Norfolk, Virginia, is a white sailboat on a mahogany bar. Joliet is the last mile. Salina, Kansas, is an ear of corn listening to a hot breeze.

Galveston is an old lady frowning at a bikini. Kansas City is Narcissus studying his face in placid water. St. Petersburg is a pair of old hands clasped in a doctor's waiting room.

Carson City is a blue lake flashing a mirror at the sun. Scranton is a bomb shelter. Fort Worth is one half of a duel. Needles, California, is a rattler on a rock. Waterbury is a writer's childhood. Cape Cod is a summertime scorpion.

Schenectady is a fuse. Key West is a crouching in a bowl of madrilene. Bridgeport is a circus tent. Santa Monica is a silent movie. Valdosta is hot girls. Birmingham is a big bee. Dearborn is a rich man reaching for yesterday.

Greensboro is a new rocker. Erie is a house party on a boat. Cleveland is a blunt homerun. St. Louis is a river boat with air conditioning. Lexington, Kentucky, is a sprig of mint. Brooklyn is a corner candy store.

My town? Hallandale is a buried gun.

DREW PEARSON

Senate Staff Did Thorough Job

WASHINGTON — As the Senate Ethics Committee ground its hearings toward a stop last week, it was apparent that its investigative staff had done a meticulous job of probing Sen. Dodd's finances, but that the Senators themselves either had forgotten or ignored some of the most important points in the strange career of Tom Dodd.

These include his backdoor law practice, payroll padding, payroll maneuvering, favors to gift-bearing lobbyists, accepting free automobiles and airplane travel from those doing business with the government.

Since this column had something to do with starting the Dodd investigation, we trust the Senate committee will not resent our reporting some of the facts which they overlooked. Here are a few of them:

Repairs on Dodd's summer home—Michael O'Hare, Dodd's former office manager and bookkeeper, was prepared to testify that more than $50,000 was taken out of testimonial dinner funds to renovate Dodd's summer home in North Stonington, Conn. He was not cross-examined. The whole thing was ignored.

Advice on tax-free gifts—Sen. Dodd has claimed that he had the advice of his lawyers to treat contributions to testimonial dinners as tax-free gifts. However, sworn testimony before the Senate committee showed that Dodd's tax accountant in Hartford, David Nichols, warned him otherwise. Nichols learned that Dodd had transferred $6,000 to his personal account from funds raised at the "D.C. Reception for Dodd" and warned that the $6,000 would have to be reported as income unless Dodd listed it as a loan and paid it back.

Thus Dodd admitted by repaying the $6,000 loan that this money was taxable, while at the same time claiming that other identical contributions were not taxable.

Loans and jobs—Dodd persuaded the White House to appoint the son of Lazarus Hayman in Hartford as assistant U.S. attorney in Connecticut. Simultaneously Dodd borrowed, first $7,500 from Hayman; later $6,000 from him to satisfy a total income tax payment of $13,500.

The Senate committee listened to testimony regarding Dodd's borrowing to pay this $13,500, but never really delved into whether Dodd paid back the money and its possible connection with the U.S. attorneyship which Dodd secured for the son of his benefactor.

Backdoor law practice—There's a criminal statute forbidding a Senator from taking law fees in return for practice against the government. Yet Dodd made representations before Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall in the case of a government park and a high rise apartment which Dodd's client Tom Frouge wanted to build in San Francisco obstructing the view of the Golden Gate.

Dodd even quarreled with his law associates about his share of the legal business.

"I am sure you will understand," he wrote his law associates on July 2, 1961, "when I tell you that I have made a large contribution to the firm, and actually my return has been small. It should be much larger, and this is something I will have to talk about very soon."

"I am sure you know as well as I do that there is a considerable amount of business that goes into the office because of me."

"Many men who are in public life receive a steady income from their law practices because of the value of the association."

Letter to LBJ—An array of Dodd witnesses, obviously carefully coached, swore to the Senate committee that money raised from testimonial dinners was for the purpose of paying Dodd's personal expenses, not campaign expenses. The Senate committee, however, knew of one clinching letter written by Dodd to none less than Lyndon B. Johnson, then Vice President, Aug. 5, 1963, thanking him for agreeing to speak at Dodd Day in Connecticut. "Allow me to thank you again for your generous offer to come to Connecticut to assist me in my forthcoming campaign," Dodd wrote to Johnson.

The Senate committee could have subpoenaed the letter from Dodd's files or requested it from the White House. It did neither.

Payroll padding—Mrs. Beverly Curry of Hartford has been on the Senator's payroll for six years for $4,500 annually. Mrs. Curry is supposed to be attached to the Hartford office, but has never worked there. But her husband is a big Connecticut politician whose support Dodd needs.

The son of Mrs. Florence Lowe, Washington representative of Metromedia, was put on the Juvenile Delinquency Subcommittee payroll, though he had no experience in the intricate problem of the causes of delinquency. Metromedia was under investigation for its emphasis on TV crime at the time.

Edward Sullivan, who draws $15,000 a year as a member of Dodd's staff, lives in Hartford and does no real work for Dodd except money-raising. Jim Gartland, who does come into the Dodd office, is chiefly a chair-warmer. These absorb much of the Senator's staff salary allotment.

Diverting personnel—To make up for chairwarmers, Dodd diverts trained personnel to his office from the Juvenile Delinquency Subcommittee. This committee, dealing with a vital subject, is supposed to have a staff of 21; though only eight have been working on committee business. At one time during the investigation of televised crime by NBC, committee counsel Carl Perrian threatened to resign because he was investigating one of the biggest corporations in television without enough personnel to do it.

SYLVIA PORTER

Needed: Population Einstein

"You can lay all us demographers end to end and you still won't solve the population crisis."

"You can set up thousands of birth control clinics around the globe, but the women will still stay away in droves because the pill won't work without the will."

"You can unleash the Great American Farmer to feed a hungry world, but by the most optimistic projections, he could produce only a fraction of what's needed now, not to mention a generation from now when the world population will be double what it is today."

These were the pessimistic ramblings of Robert C. Cook, president of the Population Reference Bureau in Washington in a recent interview. They underscore how pathetically insufficient are the efforts we now are making to forestall what has been called the "greatest worldwide catastrophe of modern times."

Two years ago the President called upon the nation to "face forthrightly the multiplying problems of our multiplying populations."

Two years ago, a White House Citizens' Advisory Committee on the world population explosion concluded that "this may be the last generation which has the opportunity to cope with the problem on the basis of free choice."

Two years ago, experts from all over the world testified on the enormity and urgency of the world population problem before a Senate subcommittee chaired by Sen. Ernest Gruening (D-Alaska) and urged a major campaign to avoid the prospect of massive starvation and worldwide legal controls on human reproduction.

Yet our efforts to bring family planning information to the billions who need it today are like the proverbial "Seven maids with seven mops" who were supposed to sweep up the coastline in "Alice Through the Looking Glass."

The United Nations still does not supply family planning devices through its health and population assistance programs, although it has the authority to do so. While the U.S. has spent billions on "death control" to combat killer diseases, we are spending less than $10 million a year for population control, much of it for such projects as subsidizing censuses. It is true that there are thousands of causes of death, but only one cause of birth, but the imbalance of our spending here is appallingly unrealistic.

What is needed?

First, most experts agree, we must decide on an "optimum" population level at which the world can hope to feed itself.

Second, we need to recruit the world's top brains to draw up specific, bold plans of action for drastic increases in food supplies and drastic decreases in population growth.

As an immediate goal, the experts insist, we must achieve a 3-4 per cent yearly increase in world food supplies vs. the actual 1 per cent.

We must, within 10 years, slash the yearly rate of population increase from today's 2 per cent to 1 per cent.

In sum, says Cook, "we need something on the scale of a Marshall Plan or Project Apollo to do the job."

The cost? Probably not as great as we would think. It would be possible, for example, to blanket the subcontinent of India with 70 educational TV stations reaching 500,000 individual villages, at an estimated cost of $200 million and a yearly operating budget of $20-40 million. Admittedly, the cost of a comprehensive program could mount into the billions. But the alternatives are unthinkable, for the one-third of us who worry about our waistlines as well as for the other two-thirds of us who wonder where the next meal will come from.

The Test Of A Man

By THOMAS J. FLEMING

Writer of New York City

I can still hear my father telling the story about old Mr.

Blaine and his watch factory:

"We went to work as soon as we got out of grammar school on those days," he would begin. "Most of the kids my age worked in a watch factory next door to where we lived. It was assembly line work, dull as dishwater. But the pay was a dollar a day—good money in 1900."

"Each morning they opened the doors and we filed in one by one. Sitting there behind a desk would be an old high-collared clerk. You'd get in front of the desk and he'd ask you: 'Protestant or Catholic?'"

"If anyone answered 'Catholic' he was told, 'No openings today.' If you said 'Protestant' you were handed a slip and told to report to a certain section for work."

"Like many other Catholics in the line I gritted my teeth and said 'Protestant'—we needed the buck that badly."

The simple brutality of this story awoke a fierce anger in my boyish mind and I understood why my father had joined Frank Hague and his political cohorts in the 1920s. I never tired of hearing how they had battled the ruling class for power in Jersey City.

Galled by years of injustice from men like Blaine, they had built an aggressive political machine that stormed out of the slums and took charge of the city.

After one final titanic battle in which both sides used every trick in the political books, the old ruling class bitterly admitted defeat and all but abandoned their attempts to regain control of the city.

Many of them sold their factories and left the city. Others chose to barricade themselves within a small, purely social world and invest their family money in the stock market. Then came 1929. None of these first families was ultrarich. Hundreds of them were practically wiped out by the stock market's catastrophic plunge.

Reduced to genteel poverty, they moldered in their big houses and as the Depression lengthened, these, too, decayed. One of these mansions was only a block away from our home. Surrounded by uncut hedges and a weedy lawn, it looked like something out of a Charles Addams' cartoon. We kids called it "the haunted house."

One day I happened to mention the house to my father. He laughed and said, "It isn't haunted—except maybe by memories. I know the family well. They used to own that watch factory where I worked when I was your age."

"Only Blaine's son is left now," my father continued. "A musician. From what I understand, he lost every cent he had in the crash."

The Depression years ground away, reducing all opposition to the Hague regime to near invisibility.

But the test of a man is not simply his ability to acquire money and power—it is what he does with these things.

One winter night in the early 1940s I saw my father meet this test. Out of the haunted house came the scion of the old watch factory owner. Up the street he came to ring our bell and to ask to see my father.

I stood in the doorway, trying to read some emotion on my father's face. I realized a kind of climax to an ancient bitterness was about to be enacted.

"Nice to see you, Mr. Blaine," my father said, holding out his hand. "What can I do for you?"

Mr. Blaine fingered his hat for a long moment, then blurted, "Mr. Fleming, I need a job. I don't know whether you can help me. I don't know whether you will help me. I know my family hasn't been on your side politically."

There was silence for a moment. Here, if ever, was the perfect moment for revenge. How easily my father could even the score for those days of humiliation in the watch factory by throwing this man out of our house.

Instead, my father's voice came up to me, steady and calm. "What kind of work can you do, Mr. Blaine?"

"Well—I'm an organist, but these days most churches don't have enough money to pay a salary."

My father knew little about church organists and their demand. He went to church and had a strong faith, though he seldom talked about it. He just lived it.

"You're a college graduate, aren't you?" Dad continued. "Yes, of course."

"Ever work in a library?"

"No."

"But you know your way around books?"

"Yes. Yes. I think I do."

"How would you like a job as a city librarian?"

"Mr. Fleming, that would be—just perfect."

"I heard about an opening. I'll see what I can do." My father stood up and held out his hand once more. "I'll call you tomorrow."

Blaine shook his hand. "Mr. Fleming, I can't thank you enough."

Blaine did not realize it, of course, but when he shook my father's hand he was sealing a bargain. In the tough code of the city's politicians, a handshake was an absolute contract.

Mr. Blaine disappeared into the windy night. I sat on the stairs thinking of those ragged lines filing into the watch factory each morning to accept their humiliation. But they no longer represented a destructive bitterness, a defeating hatred inside me. They were part of history now: a foolish, sad history. With five minutes of matter-of-fact kindness my father had healed the wound.

COMMUNIST MOVEMENT SICK

Latin America Has Castro Worried

An AP News Analysis

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

A summit meeting of the American nations is less than a month away, and Fidel Castro has added an unofficial item to the agenda. The Cuban dictator has come out with an anguished lament indicating that in his opinion the Communist movement in Latin America is sick.

Between the lines, one can detect Castro blaming the Russians and their cautious policy of "peaceful transition."

In Castro's opinion, anybody who is unwilling to fight constantly is unfit to be called a Communist. In his opinion, for example, the top political bureau of the Communist party of Venezuela—which follows Moscow's leadership—is made up of defeatists and "a group of theorizing charlatans."

Castro's cry of pain came in one of his marathon speeches, this one from the steps of Havana University this week at ceremonies marking the 10th anniversary of Castro's assault on the Cuban presidential palace, a milestone in his successful revolution.

The speech dealt with Venezuela and events revolving about the assassination this month of Dr. Julio Iribarren Borges, brother of the Venezuelan foreign minister.

According to the Venezuelan press, and government, a revolutionary of the Communist-led FALN—Armed Forces of National Liberation—took credit on behalf of that organization for the slaying and did so publicly in an article in Granma, a Cuban publication.

This could have been a bad tactical blunder. It can hurt the Castroites, not only in Venezuela but elsewhere in Latin America. Venezuela can, and probably will, present this to the Organization of American States or perhaps to the United Nations as convincing evidence of Castro's subversion in Latin American countries.

The episode will embarrass the Soviet Union, in more ways than one. First, Castro accuses the Soviet Communists—evidently with justification—of being fearful of revolution, of wanting to take the cautious way, and, by implication, of sacrificing the aims of violent Communists to Soviet policy.

At the same time, the Soviet Union has been displaying a keen interest in Latin American trade. If it wants to succeed in this, Moscow is in no position to deny Castro's charges and thus indicate that it is, after all, actively interested in violent revolution in Latin America.

LOTS OF COMPLAINTS

Congress Develops Uncertain Signs, Shows Frustrations

By JOHN HERBERS

(c) N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — The 90th Congress, not yet three months old, is premeated by a spirit of malaise and frustrations that many members find extraordinary and troubling so early in the session.

It is generally agreed that much of this is a reflection of the mood of the electorate and that voter dissatisfactions are even greater now than they were at the time of the elections last November.

"We are now on a strange plateau," said Rep. Donald J. Irwin, D-Conn. "Everyone is just waiting to see what direction things will take."

There are several indications of the uncertain and uneasy state of Congress:

+With the popularity of President Johnson still low in many areas, more and more liberal Democrats, both senators and representatives, are planning to steer a course independent of the national Administration that has been their anchor.

+Congressional mail is filled with an unusual number of complaints. "When I read my mail these days," said Rep. Richard D. McCarthy, D-N.Y., "I wonder how I ever got re-elected."

+Demand for public services has been overshadowed by demand for action against a variety of undesired facts of life—crime in the streets, the war in Vietnam, unfair draft prices, high taxes, and corrupt public officials. After hearing for years that Social Security benefits are too low, for example, congressmen are now deluged with complaints that Social Security taxes are becoming burdensome.

+There have been increasing complaints of a leadership failure among the Democrats, particularly in the House. The National Committee for an Effective Congress said in a report yesterday that the lines between the President and the Congress have become slack and, despite all his moving and eloquent messages to congress, President Johnson "neither heads a movement nor leads a body of believers."

+The vote by House members to bar Adam Clayton Powell, rather than accept the stern disciplinary action recommended by the leadership, was widely interpreted as a shortsighted move that invited a court suit and possibly a major conflict with the judiciary. A number of members, however, said the emotional involvement went much deeper than anti-Powell sentiment and that many representatives were looking for a chance to challenge the judiciary on the question of the separation of powers.

The report prepared by the National Committee for an Effective Congress said: "There is fear on Capitol Hill that the election failed to express the magnitude of changes in the voters' chemistry, a fear which makes Democrats nervous and Republicans wary. The mainstream of American politics seems to be relocating itself, finding a new bed, and politicians don't want to be on the wrong side."

The committee is a citizen's group that spent $170,000 last fall assisting liberal and moderate candidates for Congress. "As the liberal senator looks out into the nation," the report said, "he sees a changed vista and hears a new language. Traditional groups, which once gave him support and ideas, no longer furnish the direction or the energy."

"The unions are without movement, lacking, above all, the kind of 'social philosophy' which has made it dangerous for any majority politician, however sympathetic, to identify with them. Finally, dogmatic intellectuals are steeped in yesterday's concepts, nostalgic for the '30's."

To discover the political trends, a number of House members have been polling their constituents by mail. These polls are admittedly not scientific, but they provide congressmen with detailed data on what a great number of their constituents are thinking.

Rep. Lucien N. Nedzi, D-Mich., a liberal who has voted with the administration on most issues, recently received about 10,000 replies from a poll of his district, which extends from the center of Detroit to the exclusive suburb of Grosse Pointe and includes the Polish settlement of Hamtramck.

The district is about 60 per cent Democratic, and President Johnson carried almost 70 per cent of the vote in 1964. In a poll last year, Nedzi found that about 38 per cent of those replying approved the job that the National Administration was doing. The recent poll showed that figure had dropped to about 5 per cent.

Next to the war in Vietnam, Nedzi's constituents listed crime, race relations and inflation as the major issues facing the nation.

Congressmen from other regions have reported trends similar to those discovered by Nedzi. Accordingly, a number of liberal Democrats in both chambers are planning to run in 1968 with a minimum of identification with the Johnson Administration.

National party leaders, and presumably the White House, have agreed to this tactic, asking only that the congressional candidates not run against the national party.

New Way Found To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, Texas—If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss... and grow more hair.

For years "they said it couldn't be done." But now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women, that is not only stopping hair loss... but is really growing hair!

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. If they believe that the treatment will help you, they invite you to try it for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself!

Naturally, they would not offer this no-risk trial unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness seems to "run in your family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Many conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair... now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., will supply you with treatment for 32 days, at their risk, if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially, by mail and without obligation. Adv.

Take Mat Crowns

Two Warren grapplers, Roger Slocum and Randy Rossman, won Championships at the AAU-sponsored Junior Olympic Wrestling Tournament at DuBois Saturday night and will compete in the State Finals at Greensburg on March 31-April 1.

Slocum had no trouble blanking Fossler of DuBois in the finals Saturday night, 5-0, to capture the 100-pound title in the 11-14 age group. Rossman, who had byed into the unlimited division finals, pinned John Dykowski of Ridgway in the second period for the crown.

Seven local matmen advanced into the finals, but five were defeated. Larry Madigan lost an 8-0 decision to Tom Haney of Clearfield in the 70-pound class. Danny Albaugh was edged by Mike Kundick of Redbank, 1-0 at 80-pounds. Gary Bona dropped an 8-1 match to Bill Grimninger of Clearfield in the 130-pound division. Pete Blech was pinned by North Clarion's Bob Wagner at 140, and 150-pounder Art Blum was also victim of a fall to Bob Gordon of Clearfield at 150.

Nineteen local boys participated in the two-day affair held at DuBois Area High School. Coaches Lee Chew and George Knopik accompanied the grapplers on the trip.

Slocum, an eighth grader, breezed through the tourney to the Championship. In four matches he scored 26 points while surrendering only two. He won decisions by 6-0, 8-2, 7-0 and 5-0 scores.

Rossman, also an eighth grader, received a bye into the finals in the unlimited class, which had only three entrants. He had his opponent in trouble early and registered a fall at the buzzer ending the first period. Officials, however, ruled the pin came after the signal and Rossman repeated the feat in the second stanza.

Both will advance to the State Junior Olympic tourney at Greensburg in two weeks. Winners from three other Regionals meets held at Greensburg, Washington, Meadville and Shaler over the weekend will also compete.

Coach Chew praised all the wrestlers for their performance at DuBois. He noted that most of the other teams entered in the tourney had wrestled in league competition prior to the DuBois event, making the tourney Warren's baptism of fire.

Chew also was appreciative of the aid he and coach Knopik received from the parents who attended the tournament. Warren, he said, received many compliments not only on their wrestling ability, but for their behavior.

Cage Playoff Set Tomorrow

The playoff between the Knicks and the Pistons for the Junior YMCA Basketball League championship will be held at Deity Junior High School tomorrow at 5:15.

The Knicks won the first half title and the Pistons were champions in second half play. Only one game will be played to decide the overall loop winner.

Two Brave Catchers Hurt; Houston Shades Bucs, 2-1

Right-hander Sammy Ellis allowed only one hit in six innings yesterday as the Cincinnati Reds blanked Atlanta 4-0 in a rain-curtailed exhibition baseball game marred by injuries to Braves catchers Joe Torre and Gene Oliver.

Oliver suffered a cracked bone on the back of his right hand in the first inning and is expected to be sidelined from two to three weeks. Torre, who replaced Oliver behind the plate, split the index finger on his right hand and will be out of action about a week.

Hank Aaron's infield single was the only hit off Ellis before rain halted the game after the sixth inning. Deron Johnson had two hits and Tommy Harper scored twice, pacing the Reds' attack.

Fritz Peterson and Thad Tillotson combined for a three-hit performance and Joe Pepitone's force play grounder drove in a third-inning run as the New York Yankees nipped the New York Mets 1-0. Neither Peterson, who yielded one hit in six innings, nor Tillotson has been scored on this spring.

Sonny Jackson's run-scoring single in the 10th inning gave Houston a 2-1 victory over Pittsburgh and Kansas City edged Minnesota 5-4 at Caracas, Venezuela on an RBI single by Dick Green in the 10th.

The Los Angeles Dodgers snapped a 3-3 tie on successive eighth-inning homers by Wes Parker and Jeff Torborg en route to an 8-6 victory over Baltimore. A four-run burst in the first inning propelled San Francisco past the Chicago Cubs 8-5, extending the Giants' winning string to three games.

Jerry Buchek rapped three singles and a double, leading St. Louis to a 7-5 verdict over the Chicago White Sox. Cleveland struck for five runs in the first inning and Steve Hargan pitched five scoreless innings in an 8-2 victory over California. Philadelphia shut out Washington 4-0 on a four-hit by Chris Short, Ruben Gomez and Pedro Ramos. The Boston Red Sox rallied for two runs in the ninth inning and edged Detroit 7-6 in a 25-hit slugfest.

Warren Hot Stove Meeting Postponed

Due to Holy Week activities, the Warren Hot Stove League will not meet this week, a spokesman announced last night. The next meeting will be slated for sometime next week.

All interested parties are reminded that only a good turnout can insure that the program will be continued again this year.

MAKE NCAA TOURNEY SEMI-FINALS

Fourth-ranked North Carolina routed Boston College, 96-80 in the finals of the Eastern Regional NCAA college basketball tourney Saturday to gain the semi-finals slated for Friday night at Louisville, Kentucky. The Tar Heels were led by Bob Lewis, who poured in 31 points, and Larry Miller with 22. North Carolina, now 26-4 for the season will face Midwest Regional winner Dayton, while UCLA, victors in the West, take on Houston, the Midwest tourney champions. (See story at right)

JANE SCHAEFFER LEADS GIRLS AT CORRY

Twelve members of the Warren YMCA boys' swimming team qualified to compete in the State Meet at York on April 1 at Saturday's Regional competition held in the New Kensington pool.

On the distaff side, Jane Schaeffer took two first places and anchored the runner-up 160-yard freestyle relay team for the local Y girls at the District Meet at Corry.

The boys slated to swim under the Warren banner at States are Mike Voigt, Mike Doherty, Darryl Pierce and Mark Schaeffer, members of the 200-yard freestyle relay team that placed sixth in the Junior Division; Dave Walters, Rich Krapfel, Robbie Simonsen and Walter Bergler, who took third in Cadet 100-yard medley relay.

None of the Prep boys qualified for the State Meet. Requirements for the trip to York were a place among the top nine in the individual events and the first six places in the relays.

In the girls' meet at Corry, Jane Schaeffer turned in a fine 1:03.9 clocking to win the 100-yard freestyle in the Juniors Division and added another first place in the 40-yard freestyle with a time of :22.6.

Then she combined with Pam Logan, Lynn Wendelboe, and Amy Bowen to cop second place in the 160-yard freestyle relay.

Other place winners in the Junior Division were: Eileen Arnold and Ann Jarvis, second and fourth respectively in Junior diving; Pam Logan, fourth in the 100-yard butterfly; Lynn Wendelboe, fifth in 100-yard freestyle; Ann Jarvis, fifth in 100-yard backstroke; and Amy Bowen and Eileen Arnold, fifth and sixth in the 100-yard freestyle.

Two Cadet relay teams also placed: Faith Lyle, Susan Whyte, Ellen Anderson and Hallie Bunk teamed for a second place in the 80-yard medley relay and the combo of Gretchen Sando, Jane Robertson, Jane Hand and Lora Huey swam to a fourth in the 80-yard freestyle relay.

Regional competition at New Kensington is next for the girls, but berths will not be announced until later in the week.

A complete roundup for both boys and girls who placed in the meets follows.

Bruins, Dayton, Houston, N. Carolina Win in NCAA

By TED MEIER

It will be unbeaten UCLA against Houston and North Carolina against Dayton in the semifinals at Louisville, Ky. Friday night in the NCAA post-season tournament for the National Collegiate Basketball Championship.

The top-ranked UCLA Bruins, with super-soph Lew Alcindor tossing in 38 points, made it 28 in a row by defeating U. of Pacific 80-64 in the Far West regional at Corvallis, Ore. Saturday night.

Houston, seventh-ranked in the final Associated Press poll of the season, overcame Southern Methodist 83-75 in the Midwest regional at Lawrence, Kan. Fourth-ranked North Carolina crushed Boston College 96-80 in the East regional at College Park, Md. and unranked Dayton went overtime to eliminate Virginia Tech 71-76 in the Midwest regional at Evanston, Ill.

Southern Illinois, the country's No. 1 small college team in the AP poll, won the championship of the National Invitation Tournament in New York with a second half rally to whip Marquette 71-56. It was the 19th straight for the Salukis from Carbondale, Ill. and gave them a 24-2 record for the season.

The Pacific Tigers, with a 21-game winning streak, tied UCLA at 21-21 late in the first half, but fell behind for good when Alcindor dunked one of his 13 field goals. The agile 7-foot-1 giant got his other points on 12 of 14 free throws.

Elynn Hayes, the Big E, led Houston, now 24-3, over the stubborn SMU Mustangs who had upset second-ranked Louisville Friday night. The 6-foot-8 Hayes, who may be pitted against Alcindor at Louisville, rallied the Cougars after SMU had wiped out a 14-point deficit with a 15-3 burst to tie the score at 72-72.

Hayes got 31 points including a key goal that put Houston ahead 76-73 with 1:57 left. "Hayes really took charge," said Guy Lewis, Houston coach, who now has the chance to make good his prediction that "UCLA will get beat."

He added, however: "We lack the killer instinct and I don't know if that will be fatal against UCLA or not. I haven't decided exactly how we'll play them, but we definitely won't try any control game on them."

SMU, led by Charles Beasley with 18 points and Denny Holmace, with 16, tried valiantly to give retiring Coach Doc Hayes the 300th victory of his career.

"There isn't much you can say when you leave a bunch of boys in the dressing room with tears in their eyes," Hayes said.

"They gave me something I will cherish the rest of my life as I leave coaching."

Boston College took an early 12-3 lead over North Carolina, but the Tar Heels, led by Bob Lewis' 31 points, rallied to lead 44-42 at the half. Larry Miller added 22 points for the winners as the Tar Heels upped their record to 26-4.

Dayton erased a 62-52 Virginia Tech lead to tie the Gobblers at 64-64 in regulation time on Glander Torain's free throw with 1:48 left.

The Flyers, 24-5, pulled away in the extra period led by Don May. He scored 25 points for the game including five free throws in the Dayton rally.

Walt Frazier, 6-3 Little All-America who was voted the most valuable player of the tourney, fired Southern Illinois to the NIT championship after Marquette had led 34-23 at halftime. Frazier was high scorer for the game with 21 points.

Bob Lloyd set an NIT scoring record of 129 points, tossing in 44 points to lead Rutgers over Marshall 93-76 in the NIT consolation for third place.

Princeton walloped St. John's of New York 78-58. Indiana beat Tennessee 51-44. Kansas edged Louisville 70-68 and Texas Western defeated Wyoming 69-67 in the NCAA regional consolation.

Jo Jo White led Kansas over Louisville with 22 points as the Jayhawks, the Big Eight champions and third-ranked in the final AP poll, beat Louisville.

"It was a big one for us," said Ted Owens, Kansas coach. "There was prestige because we were playing the No. 1 team and the Missouri Valley Conference champion. I can't stress enough how much it can mean to our young kids to close the season with a victory over this highly-regarded club."

Kansas ended with a 23-4 record. Louisville 23-5. St. Benedict's of Kansas won the NAIA championship at Kansas City by defeating Oklahoma Baptist, the defending champion, 71-65, despite 47 points by Al Tucker voted the tourney's most valuable player for the second straight year.

Moberly, Mo., won the National Junior College championship by defeating San Jacinto of Texas 56-55 in the tourney final at Hutchinson, Kan.

Nashville Business College won its sixth straight women's National AAU championship by beating the Raytown, Mo. Pipettes 47-39 in the tournament final at Gallup, N.M.

Winston-Salem, N.C. State had whipped Southwest Missouri 77-74 Friday night at Evansville, Ind., for the NCAA small college title, the prize that Southern Illinois passed up to try for bigger prestige in the NIT.

Four of five defending champions retained their titles in the final round Saturday as Lock Haven amassed 80 points, Adams State of Colorado with 69, was second, Morehead of Minnesota, with 66, Central State of Washington, with 44, and St. Cloud, Minn., with 39, followed. Wayneburg, Pa., was seventh with 36 points, and Bloomsburg was 10th with 24.

Lock Haven had only one individual champion, Ken Melchior, at 115 pounds. But the defenders gave strong competition to the end, with four entries lasting to the finals. One, Jim Blacksmith, defending champion at 160 pounds, lost a 1-0 decision to Rollin Schimmel of Eastern Oregon after three overtimes.

Champs who held their titles were Mike Stanley of Adams State, at 130 pounds, Rick Shyvesant, Morehead, 137 pounds, Dennis Warren, Central Washington, 145, and Lamont Merkle, Central Washington, at 167. Merkle's win came with only 34 seconds left in his match and his opponent, John Smith of Lock Haven leading 17-16.

Ambridge Shellacks Chester in A Final

HARRISBURG (AP) — Chuck DeVenzio, Son and Co., otherwise known as Ambridge High School, is the undisputed king of scholastic basketball in Pennsylvania.

Chester made the mistake of questioning the Bridgers' claim to the throne here Saturday night and wound up licking the wounds of a 93-61 shellacking.

A crowd of 8,269 was on hand at the Farm Show Arena for the championship game, which was televised live statewide.

In winning its first PIAA Class A championship, Ambridge set a record for most points scored in a title game. The old mark was established in 1965 when Midland beat Steelton - Highspire, 90-61.

Coach DeVenzio also had high praise for his team, and he particularly singled out his son, Dick, whose playmaking and shooting sparked the Ambridge attack.

"He's more than good. He's great," declared the proud father. "I'm sorry if it sounds as though I'm being boastful, but it's true."

Young DeVenzio, a 5-10 sharpshooter who hits with deadly accuracy, scored 21 points and fed repeatedly inside to junior forward Denny Wuyick, who topped everyone with 29.

Ambridge connected on a fantastic two-thirds of its field goal attempts, and 21 of 27 shots from the free throw line. Chester couldn't stop the Bridgers without fouling, and two of the Clippers' top performers, 6-5 center Ken Shamberger and junior forward Harry McLaughlin, fouled out in the fourth quarter.

Shamberger scored a disappointing six points before bowing out with 7:01 remaining in the game. Paul Williams, the other half of Chester's one-two punch, led the Clippers with 18 points.

For Ambridge, normally the doorman of its section 3 in the powerful WPIAL, it marked the first undefeated season. The Bridgers finished with a 27-0 mark.

Placing for the Cadets were: Hallie Bunk, second in the 20-yard freestyle and third in 40-yard freestyle; Susan Whyte, with thirds in both 20-yard butterfly and 20-yard breaststroke; and Faith Lyle, sixth in the 20-yard backstroke.

Two Cadet relay teams also placed: Faith Lyle, Susan Whyte, Ellen Anderson and Hallie Bunk teamed for a second place in the 80-yard medley relay and the combo of Gretchen Sando, Jane Robertson, Jane Hand and Lora Huey swam to a fourth in the 80-yard freestyle relay.

Regional competition at New Kensington is next for the girls, but berths will not be announced until later in the week.

A complete roundup for both boys and girls who placed in the meets follows.

Lock Haven Retains NAIA Title
LOCK HAVEN, Pa. (AP) — Lock Haven College swept to its second consecutive title in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics wrestling tournament. Two other Pennsylvania colleges finished in the top 10.

Four of five defending champions retained their titles in the final round Saturday as Lock Haven amassed 80 points, Adams State of Colorado with 69, was second, Morehead of Minnesota, with 66, Central State of Washington, with 44, and St. Cloud, Minn., with 39, followed. Wayneburg, Pa., was seventh with 36 points, and Bloomsburg was 10th with 24.

Warren Hot Stove Meeting Postponed

Due to Holy Week activities, the Warren Hot Stove League will not meet this week, a spokesman announced last night. The next meeting will be slated for sometime next week.

All interested parties are reminded that only a good turnout can insure that the program will be continued again this year.

Illinois Coaches Resign After Big 10 Ultimatum

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Three Illinois coaches involved in the $21,000 athletic slush fund resigned yesterday following a Big Ten mandate that the university fire them or face indefinite suspension.

Dr. David D. Henry, the university president, accepted the resignations of football Coach Pete Elliott, basketball Coach Harry Combes and assistant basketball Coach Howard Braun.

Dr. Henry said the resignations preceded any action by the Board of Directors of the Athletic Association or the Faculty Senate Committee on Athletics, both of whom were to meet with Dr. Henry yesterday afternoon for consultation on the matter.

The resignations culminated a three-month ordeal beginning Dec. 12 when Dr. Henry exposed the slush fund to Big Ten Commissioner Bill Reed.

Big Ten athletic directors originally had voted that Illinois fire the three coaches or show cause why the school should not have its membership suspended or terminated.

Illinois appealed and on March 3, conference faculty representatives came up with the same order.

Illinois then exercised a final "show cause" appeal Saturday when Dr. Henry met with the faculty representatives in Chicago but failed to dissuade them from a penalty he considered "too harsh" from the very beginning.

The faculty group voted on Saturday that Illinois either fire the coaches by tomorrow or face indefinite suspension from the conference.

Dr. Henry, in a statement issued yesterday, said "Under the mandate of the intercollegiate conference of faculty representatives, the case is considered closed inasmuch as the three coaches relinquished all duties with the Athletic Association as of this date."

"The Board of Directors of the Athletic Association have recommended and I have approved the honoring of existing contracts with coaches which will terminate Aug. 31, 1967. Their faculty status in the College of Physical Education (part time assignments) is not affected."

The coaches issued a joint statement which read:

"It is apparent to everyone that the Commissioner, Athletic Directors and Faculty Representatives of the Western Conference Big Ten have 'fired us'. We are therefore reluctantly stepping down from our respective coaching responsibilities at this time rather than to allow the conference to unjustly force the University of Illinois to act on an impossible situation. We emphatically believe that the final decision in this matter must be made by the conference rather than the University and consider the announcement of March 18, 1967 as that final decision."

U. S. Hockey Team Loses To Russians

VIENNA (AP) — The United States amateur hockey team, with all the luck against it, went down fighting before defending champion Russia in the World Championships yesterday, 7-2. Canada trounced Finland 5-1 and went into a tie with the Russians for the lead, each with two victories. The Americans are 1-1.

In the first period, with the Russians ahead 2-0, assistant captain Marty Howe of Colorado Springs, Colo., got a ten-minute penalty for misconduct—apparently for arguing with Swiss referee Max Braun. That put more of a burden on the Americans.

Despite these setbacks, the Americans, cheered by a crowd of 10,000 in Vienna's Stadt Halle, went into the final period full of steam and scored two goals in an inspired 90 seconds spell. But the Russians had already scored five goals at that point and it was too late to save the game.

The Russians, champions the last four years, have racked up a goals record of 14-4 in their first game against Sweden Saturday, 4-3.

The powerful Russian first forward line had two goals in the first seven minutes. Each time Alexandrov scored.

Ragulin, a Russian defenseman, slapped in a third goal from the blue line in 15:25.

At the end of the second period the Russians led 5-0, despite some fine saves by Carl Wetzel, the U.S. goalie from Detroit.

Don Ross, of Roseau, Minn., slapped in the first goal from the blue line at 11:31 and at 13:01 Bob Currie of Minneapolis passed to Doug Woog, of St. Paul, who banged the puck home.

THE CHAMP TAKES AIM

Heavyweight Champion Cassius Clay looks for a soft spot as he throws a playful punch at challenger Zora Folley at last Thursday's weigh-in. Both were pronounced fit by commission doctors for their title fight Wednesday night. Clay, who's fighting induction into the Army, and Folley finished up workouts over the weekend. The bout will be telecast from Madison Square Garden starting at 10:30 p.m. The champ is a 5-1 favorite to retain his crown in possibly his final defense. (See story at right)

Astros Face Injury Jinx

By MURRAY CHASS
AP Sports Writer

COCOA, Fla. (AP) — Houston's Grady Hatton was in the running for the Manager of the Year award last season until the Astros put him in line for a medical degree.

Hatton, in his rookie year with Houston, was thrown into a cram course in medicine starting June 25 when Joe Morgan, his All-Star second baseman, suffered a fractured kneecap during batting practice.

From then until the end of the season Hatton received more practical experience than Ben Casey and Dr. Kildare put together.

Bob Lillis, Morgan's replacement, suffered a separated right shoulder; Felix Mantilla, Lillis' replacement, pulled groin muscles; and Julio Gotay, Mantilla's replacement, pulled a hamstring muscle.

Pitchers Bob Bruce, Barry Latman and Dick Farrell were out at various times, and center fielder Jim Wynn fractured a wrist when he ran into a wall Aug. 1 and was out the remainder of the season.

When Morgan was injured, surprising Houston was in fourth place, 5½ games out of first in the National League. The Astros remained in the first division just about another month, finally falling to sixth July 23.

They proceeded to lose seven straight and 15 of 16 games. That put them in eighth place, 15 games behind and finished for the season.

"We had no depth," Hatton said, explaining the plummet. "We made some trades this winter that don't look like much, but they gave us the depth we've never had. If we had any one of these guys last year, we wouldn't have gone into that real bad slump."

The Astros' biggest deal was the acquisition of Ed Mathews in a five-player trade with Atlanta. Sandy Alomar came in the same trade, and the Astros also got Lee Bales from the Braves. Jim Landis was picked up from Cleveland.

Mathews, a veteran third baseman, also will be used at first. Alomar and Bales each can play second, short and third and Landis is capable of playing all three outfield positions.

Chuck Harrison has the first shot at first base while Bob Aspromonte has the same opportunity at third. But Mathews is waiting eagerly if either falters.

Morgan and speedy Sonny Jackson, who stole 49 bases as a rookie last year, make up one of the better second-short combinations, both offensively and defensively.

The outfield alignment depends to a great extent on whether Wynn will be ready to play. If he can't start right away, Landis will be in center.

If he can, though, that will free Landis to help out in left if rookie Aaron Pointer doesn't meet expectations. Rusty Staub is set in right.

John Bateman has taken off about 25 pounds from the end of last season and should be ready to handle the catching chores by himself.

Hatton's first three starters will be Dave Giusti, Mike Cuellar and Larry Dierker while the other two will be selected from among Chris Zachary, Bruce Von Hoff, Arnold Umbach, Danny Combs, Don Wilson and Tom Griffin.

Bo Belinsky, whom the Astros drafted for $25,000, will be in the bullpen along with Farrell, Latman, Claude Raymond, Carroll Sembera and Dan Schneider.

Hatton believes the Astros could have finished in the first division without the injuries—at one time 13 of his 25 players were under the doctor's care.

He thinks the same thing for this year.

Big Purse Adopted For PGATourney

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — The executive committee of the Professional Golfers Association of America set a minimum purse of $150,000 yesterday for the 1967 PGA championship to be played at the Caltanumbe course in Denver July 26-28.

At the same time, the committee announced a television blackout for the championship in Denver and the surrounding area.

Clay, Folley Ready For Wednesday Bout

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP)—Zora Folley, the 34-year-old challenger, finished his training with a two-round boxing drill yesterday and declared he was "fit and ready" to take the title away from heavyweight champion Cassius Clay Wednesday night.

The unbeaten, 25-year-old champion wound up his public boxing preparations Saturday but said he will have a secret workout today to test counter measures to Folley's left hooks to the liver. He did not work yesterday.

"Well, that's it," said Folley after his two-round workout with gangly Wendell Newton in the basement of Madison Square Garden.

Sikes Takes Open Win By 1 Stroke

By RON SPEER

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Methodical Dan Sikes, cheered on by his hometown fans, birdied two of the last six holes and captured the Jacksonville Open Golf title yesterday, shooting a closing 73 to win the $20,000 jackpot by 1 stroke.

The 36-year-old Jacksonville lawyer, who has won only two other tournaments in seven years on the pro tour, faltered briefly before his surging finish which gave him a 72-hole total of 279, nine strokes under par.

Sikes' lead was shaved to a single stroke after he bogeyed the 4th and 11th holes, but he sank birdie putts on the 13th and 16th holes to nail down the victory he said he wanted "more than any other except the really big ones."

"My putter did it," said the elated hometown hero, who had not won a tournament since claiming the 1965 Cleveland Open, but lead all the way on his home course. "I'm not playing that much better but I'm making my putts."

Runner-up and winner of $12,000 was Bill Collins, 38-year-old club pro at Purchase, N.Y., trying for a comeback on the tour.

Collins, whose second-place payoff was the largest of his career, shot a 5-under-par 67 on the Deerwood Club Course for a 280.

Folley looked sluggish against Newton, who stands 6-foot-3½, one-half inch taller than Folley. Newton copied Clay's moving, bouncing style and speared Folley with left jabs to the head.

The stolid challenger plodded after Newton and twice in each round cornered Newton and pounded his body with both hands. He hopes to be able to do that against Clay, who rarely punches at close quarters.

After 105 rounds of boxing drills, Folley said, "I'm in the shape. With the incentive of the title, I feel about 100 per cent better than I have for any other fight. This is my first shot at the title and I mean to make the most of it."

"I feel confident I can beat him by either a decision or a knockout."

Clay is a 5-1 favorite with little wagering reported.

Harry Markson, the Garden's director of boxing, said the box office was busy. He stuck to his prediction of a crowd of upwards of 16,000 and a gate of between $300,000 and $400,000 at ticket prices ranging from $8 to $50.

The 15-rounder will be telecast nationally, with New York blacked out for a 90-mile radius. The fight will be telecast live to Canada, Mexico, Japan and parts of Europe.

Fight time is 10:30 p.m. EST. Clay figures to collect $300,000 and Folley $70,000.

That's not big money for the champion but Folley will be earning a record personal purse of about $30,000 more than he ever got before.

Folley's record is 74-7-4, including 40 knockouts. He has been stopped five times. The No. 1 contender has an unbeaten streak of 12 over the last 3½ years.

Clay, making his seventh title defense within a year and his ninth in all, has a 28-0 record, including 22 knockouts.

Killy Cops 4th Victory at Vail

VAIL, Colo. (AP)—French skier Jean-Claude Killy made it four in a row yesterday as he sped through a blinding snow storm to win the men's giant slalom at the Vail Trophy race.

But Nancy Greene of Canada upset the favored French women skiers for a second time with a victory in the women's giant slalom.

Killy made the mile-long, 47-gate course in 1:42.83, seemingly unbothered by the poor visibility and rutted, icy track.

Jim Heuga of Tahoe City, Calif., was second in the men's race in 1:44.65. Heinz Messner of Austria was third in 1:46.06.

French coach Honore Bonnet explained Killy's victory simply if not scientifically. "Other people have five senses, but Killy has six," he said.

The snow and fog lifted right after the men's race and Miss Greene made her run in brilliant sunlight. She made the mile, 48-gate course in 1:16.14. Erika Schinegger of Austria was second in 1:16.68, followed by Annie Famose of France in 1:17.09.

Here's a station wagon that takes more than the VW station wagon.

More gas, more oil, more anti-freeze, more money.

The VW Station Wagon takes more than 1700 cc of gas.

The ordinary station wagon gives you more room where you need it.

Like in the gas tank. The ordinary station wagon holds twice as much gas as the VW.

And it needs every drop. The VW gets about 14 mpg while the VW gets 20.

Other station wagons need more oil while the VW gets along on one.

And in the winter, the ordinary wagon takes 100% more anti-freeze.

The ordinary VW engine never needs more than 100 cc of water, all it takes to get it going (water in the radiator).

So in the end the ordinary wagon takes more of one more thing. Money, to fill it up with more gas, oil and anti-freeze.

Sure, the ordinary station wagon has more room than the VW for all of these things.

And that's one good reason why it has about twice as less for everything else.

Post Office Trouble Continues to Grow

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien has this message for Americans: "At present your Post Office Department is in a race with catastrophe."

The postal system's physical facilities, says O'Brien, are "inadequate, badly located and aging." Mail volume, already equaling that of the rest of the world, is increasing at an explosive rate.

And O'Brien warns that the nightmarish logjam of mail last October in the Chicago post office could happen in any or all of the nation's big-city post offices.

What is to be done? O'Brien said a key to the department's efforts is the ZIP code, which has retained 63 per cent use.

The ZIP code is tied directly to the department's plan for 522 sectional postal centers in the nation. Each center is to sort mail for an average of 112 local post offices.

To help meet increasing costs, the administration is preparing to ask for a 1-cent increase in first-class mail rates and a 20 to 30 per cent increase in second- and third-class rates. The estimated increase in revenues for fiscal 1968 would be $700,000.

The department is asking a total 1968 appropriation of $6.6 billion, compared with $6.2 for the current fiscal year.

O'Brien gave his gloomy assessment and advocated his remedies in testimony at a closed hearing of the House Appropriations Committee on Feb. 27. The committee made the testimony public last night.

Detroit's Telephones Are Busy

DETROIT (AP) — More and more telephone users are getting "beep-beep-beep" instead of "ringing-ring" when they call in the Detroit metropolitan area.

Why?

Heavy traffic is jamming the circuits in the nation's fifth-largest city.

Demand for service has outdistanced the company's plans for expanding facilities, and despite the addition of some trunk lines, "we're still considerably short of the trend," said one official of Michigan Bell Telephone Co.

Intrastate toll calls increased more in Michigan last year than in any other state in the Bell System," said John S. North, general traffic manager for the company. "People are using telephones more than we could possibly anticipate."

"In Detroit alone we're handling an average of 12,038,000 calls a day. Last year we ran about 11,039,000."

"We're putting in a billion feet of wire a month across the state," said Miles Welter, Michigan Bell's plant extension engineer.

"But we still can't meet the demand for service."

Schedules Fiscal Course

Dr. Donald E. Swarts, President of the University of Pittsburgh at Bradford, announced yesterday the scheduling of

JCC Plans Courses on Rural Land

Jamestown Community College has joined forces with the Chautauque County Cooperative Extension Service in arranging a series of four programs designed to help persons develop and manage newly purchased rural land.

The sessions will be held from 7:30 to 10:00 p.m. on March 28, April 4, 11, and 18, at JCC and are designed to help prospective and present rural landowners. The four programs will cover important aspects of buying, developing, and managing rural land and the related natural resources for better country living.

Dr. Robert C. Kochersberger, chairman of the natural and health sciences division, and Prof. R. Theodore Smith of the biology department at JCC, along with Mr. Glenn Cline, Chautauque County Extension agent, will take part in the sessions.

The March 28 meeting will be entitled "Land for Country Living" and will feature Bruce Wilkins of Cornell University and Gardner Freling, a Fredonia real estate agent as speakers.

On April 4, "Woods on Rural Lands" will be discussed by Curtis Bauer, consulting forester from Jamestown, Alex Dickson of Cornell, and Julius Echert of the New York State Conservation Department.

The April 11 program will be entitled "Wildlife on Rural Lands." Howard Bobseine of the New York State Conservation Department, and Richard McNeil of Cornell will be the speakers.

The final program on April 18 will discuss "Water for Rural Living." Homer Stennett, U.S. Department of Agriculture, and Carl Winkelblech, also of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, and Donald White of Cornell University will be the speakers.

The conservation program series is open to the public without charge.

"Fiscal Policies and Programs in Local Government". The course, which will focus on issues in public finance and alternative expenditure and revenue policies, is the second in the series of in-service training courses to be offered on the Bradford campus by the Institute of Local Government (ILG) of the Graduate School of Public and International Affairs of the University.

The class in "Fiscal Policies and Programs in Local Government" will meet one evening each week for six weeks. Classes will begin on March 29 in the Hamsher House of the University of Pittsburgh at Bradford. The meeting time is 7:30-10:00 p.m.

Topics to be covered in the course include: "Public Fiscal Policy—Problems and Opportunities"; "Revenue Policy—The Wealth is There, Or Is It?"; "Revenue Policy—Problems of Fiscal Scale and Choice"; "Expenditure Policy—Where, How and When to Spend It?"; "Expenditure Policy—Local vs. Area-wide Public Services"; and "A Case Study in Public Fiscal Policy".

The courses in the community development and action series, and the text materials used in them, are free of any cost to any commissioner, mayor, councilman, and supervisor in the region. The project is financed in part by a grant to the ILG under a Federal Higher Education Act in 1965.

Governor Proclaims State Grotto Week

Governor Raymond P. Shafer will on Thursday proclaim June 25 through July 1 as Grotto to Enchanted Lantern Week.

The Grotto organization was founded in 1890 to bring "merit and good fellowship" into the lives of thousands of master masons.

Warren County is one of 10 counties having grottoes.

The announcement will be made at an official convention greeting to Ralph H. Axthelm, deputy grand monarch of the Mystic Order of Veiled Prophets of the Enchanted Realm, in the governor's office.

HOLY WEEK HAS BEGUN

Kent Peterson, Robert Merenick, Ray Marti, Steve Marti and Ruth Ackert, organist, rehearse in Epworth Methodist Church for a Crucifixion program scheduled for Wednesday night in the church. The program is set for 7:30 p.m. Yesterday was Palm Sunday, marking the beginning of Holy Week in hundreds of churches in the county. (Photo by Mansfield)

Commissioners Can Hike Taxes to $5

(TMO Harrisburg Bureau)

HARRISBURG—Under terms of legislation on the calendar of the House of Representatives, Warren County Commissioners would be authorized to increase per capita taxes from the present $3 limitation to a maximum of $5.

The present "four county and institution district purposes" is continued in the bill which stipulates that the proposed $5 maximum (as in the case of the present $3 maximum) shall represent the "total" of per capita taxes in any one year.

Another bill pertaining to sixth class counties such as Warren County, passed by the House, would remove the present $20,000 limitation in funds which the board of commissioners may appropriate annually for home economics extension work in the county.

Under terms of another bill, this one introduced in the Senate, Warren County and other sixth class counties would be required to advertise and bid, when an expenditure of more than $1000 is involved, "where particular types, models or pieces of new equipment, articles, apparatus, appliances, vehicles or parts thereof, are desired by the commissioners, which are patented and manufactured or copyrighted products." This category is now exempt from the advertising and bid requirement.

He made his remarks in a letter to Leonard H. Marks, director of the United States Information Agency.

Scott said he was informed that copies of American news magazines which are used at the USIS centers in Damascus are purchased precensored from local news dealers.

"The uncensored copies that USIS receives directly from the United States are circulated only to Americans," he said.

Scott Raps 'Syrian' Influences

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., protested yesterday reports of what he termed Syrian influence over U. S. information service (USIS) activities in that country.

Scott said reports he has received "revealed an incredible situation which makes USIS the cat's paw of an anti-American regime."

He made his remarks in a letter to Leonard H. Marks, director of the United States Information Agency.

Scott said he was informed that copies of American news magazines which are used at the USIS centers in Damascus are purchased precensored from local news dealers.

"The uncensored copies that USIS receives directly from the United States are circulated only to Americans," he said.

ONCE STATE GOVERNOR

Edward Martin, Former Anti-Red Senator, Dead

WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP) — Edward Martin, an influential opponent of deficit spending and communism during a 12-year career in the U.S. Senate, died yesterday at the age of 87.

Martin, also a former governor of Pennsylvania, had been in critical condition since Wednesday night after suffering a heart attack.

He died in a hospital in his home town of Washington, Pa., the small southwestern Pennsylvania community where he retired in 1959 after two Senate terms.

He served as governor from 1943 to 1947.

At his retirement, Martin was the ranking Republican member of the Finance Committee, working closely with the committee chairman, the late Sen. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, a Democrat.

"Inflation is a more serious threat than a depression," said Martin in attacking government spending shortly before his Senate tenure ended, "and it is a damn sight more dangerous than Russian bombs."

"The government has only that which it takes from the people in taxes," he said another time, "and a government which gives the people everything they want will soon take everything they have."

At the Republican National Convention of 1948, he was the favorite son presidential candidate of the Pennsylvania delegation. Despite complaints within the delegation, he supported New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, delivering Dewey's nomination address.

He quit college at 18 to enlist as a private in the Spanish-

American war. He served in World War I, advancing to lieutenant colonel. He was made major general and commander of the Pennsylvania National Guard in 1941.

Martin spent the years since leaving the senate largely in seclusion from public life in the company of his wife, Charity; daughter, Mary Murphy of Washington, and son, Edward, of nearby Waynesburg. He devoted most of his working hours to the Dunn-Mar Gas and Oil Co., of which he was president.

FAVOR POINTS STORIES

Will Close Road

Warren area motorists are reminded that the stretch of Route 8 between Reno and Oil City will be closed beginning April 1. The section will remain closed until Dec. 1. Traffic going north will follow Route 8 detour to Route 417, Cherrytree, Titusville and points further north.

Penelec Project

The Pennsylvania Electric Company has just completed a $22,000 improvement project at its Franklin office building. The new colonial front is red brick with white wood trim. It is located at 510 Liberty St.

Soil Tests

Contract has been awarded to Sprague & Henwood Inc., of Scranton, Pa., for soil investigations along approximately 18 miles of the future route of the Southern Tier Expressway in Allegheny County. The bid was $86,489. The project involves 265 locations along the proposed expressway from Cuba near the Cattaraugus County line, easterly to the vicinity of Belmont.

Ombudsman Bill Scheduled for Committee

A bill to establish an office to investigate citizen complaints against state agencies was recently introduced and referred to a Senate Committee. The proposal which was introduced by Senator Richard C. Frame is being discussed by the committee, headed by Frame.

Under the new bill a Department of Administrative Investigations would be established and would function as an independent state agency.

It would receive complaints from persons about any state department, board, commission or authority. In effect it would be responsible for investigating complaints, and would have the power to inspect and examine records and documents of any agency and hold investigations and hearings that might be needed.

The bill also provides that the head of the department, the ombudsman, shall be of distinguished accomplishments in legal scholarship or administrative law and not on party affiliation.

A plan similar to the one proposed already is in effect in Michigan. The plan originated in Sweden in 1809.

Divorce Complaint

Three divorce complaints were filed in Erie County court on Friday. They included: Roger D. Giles, 1929 W. 13th St., Erie, vs. Sallie Giles, 515 Water St., Warren. They were wed Dec. 7, 1963 at Warren.

Allegheny Lists Increase in Passenger Load

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. — Allegheny Airlines reported that 1,938 passengers boarded their planes last month at Jamestown Municipal Airport, an increase of 33 per cent over February, 1966.

In making the announcement, Peter Privateer, customer service manager for Allegheny Airlines, indicated the 30,000 pounds of air mail, freight and express were also handled last month at the Jamestown Airport by the airlines.

Town Crier

... By Les Rickey

Note from the news (printed in entirety):

TOKYO—Japanese personal income has risen again. I'm one of those people who spend almost as much time reading the little filler items in newspapers as I do in reading the news and Peanuts. Every once in awhile, you find something that doesn't inform so much as it intrigues, such as the above.

There it is. Everyone in Japan is making more money. The economy is robust without being overheated or undercooled. Not only are wages up, but they're up again, indicating that this is some sort of Japanese national habit.

I hate to think, though, what it's all going to lead to. Any economist will tell you that there eventually is an end to these wage-price spirals and it is usually no good. They point to the United States as the best example of this theory, and I must admit that I have no reasonable grounds to disagree with them.

But for the moment, Japan is in a boom period with the money just rolling in. The country is the world's third largest business power. Once the victim of the atom bomb, it now manufactures mechanism parts that go into the internal things.

I don't begrudge Japan its prosperity. But I anticipate, anxiously, the day when some newspaper reader in Japan picks up an issue and finds a single paragraph which says "WASHINGTON—Personal income in the United States has risen again."

Somehow I don't think it will happen. As a people, Americans cannot simplify things.

Shafer and Brainerd Laud News Campaign

Governor Raymond P. Shafer and Traffic Safety Commissioner Harry H. Brainerd have given strong support to a newspaper campaign developed by the Pennsylvania AAA Federation which would enlighten Pennsylvania drivers on the "point system" law in effect here.

The project, a series of 19 "messages" that combine cartoon art with explanatory copy, is being distributed to every newspaper in Pennsylvania. The Warren Times Mirror and Observer is participating.

Charles E. Pugh, executive vice president of the Pennsylvania AAA Federation, has called on all Pennsylvania newspapers to cooperate in the campaign. He said: "Each of the 'messages' explains a different infraction of the Vehicle Code and the points assessed for conviction of each of them."

George Tipton and John F. Benner, both of Tidoute, have been appointed as National Aides-de-Camp, Veterans of Foreign Wars, by Leslie M. Fry of Reno, Nev., commander-in-chief of U.S.V.F.W.

They were appointed because of their "tested dedication, promotion of patriotism, national security and assistance".

The department also paid $5,250,000 in state funds to the Warren County School Board for costs of transporting handicapped pupils to classes provided for them.

Part of the sum advanced to the county board for each purpose is repaid to the state through deductions by the department from reimbursements to school districts of costs of operating classes for handicapped pupils in addition to any such classes conducted in their schools by the county board.

DPI Sets $65,613 Local Aid

HARRISBURG — Payment of $65,615.55 in state funds has been made by the State Department of Public Instruction to the Warren County School Board to cover costs of special education classes for handicapped pupils provided by that board in certain schools in the county in the second half of the current school year.

It was pointed out that since county school boards do not receive money from local taxes, state funds are advanced to pay costs of special education classes operated by these boards.

Social Wanderings

by Marion Honhart

FIFTY GOLDEN YEARS of wedded bliss were celebrated by Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Burckhart who long ago pledged their wedding vows at the home of the bride's parents, 215 Canton street, Warren, with the pastor of the First Baptist Church, the Rev. Staub officiating. Residing in Lancaster, Pennsylvania, where they have been for many years, the affair was attended by friends from St. Louis, Missouri; Kansas City, Kansas; Manhasset, N. Y.; Washington, D.C., and Warren. Hosting the reception were their children Mrs. George (Betty Jane) Bearley of Lancaster, and Mrs. James (Janice) Storey of Kansas City, Kansas. Among their many presents and remembrances, the Burckharts received one of particular beauty—A large bouquet of yellow daffodils and white carnations with gold trimmed leaves that came all the way from Bolton, England.

TITLE I PROJECT—remedial instructions for the educationally deprived—is to be the topic discussed by Harold Miller, Physical Education teacher at Warren Area High School, when the Jefferson Elementary School PTA meets this evening at 8 o'clock in the auditorium. Mr. Miller is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh holding Bachelor of Science and Master's degrees. Not only does he teach boys Physical Education at WAHS, but he is also the director of Title I Project for the Warren County School System. Preceding the business meeting and program, there will be the usual classroom visitation from 7:30 to 8 p.m. Tonight also, there will be election of officers.

MINIATURES: The Jason Lee Circle will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Stephen Lauch, 438 Conewango ave., tomorrow at 8 p.m. Co-hostesses will be Mrs. John Latshaw and Mrs. E. N. Branch. Mrs. Latshaw also has charge of the program "The Easter Story" in which several will take part. Members are to bring scissors to cut table mats for the Ruth M. Smith Home.

Pittsfield Home Extension Group met and studied different ways of serving potatoes which were donated for the program by the George Lauger Farm—Gail Lauger, daughter-in-law, is a member of the group. Mrs. Stephen Kostyal and Mrs. Herbert Bonnar prepared and served a delicious hot potato salad to the twenty women present; the two had previously attended a Leaders Training Meeting.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We at Planned Parenthood are deeply concerned about the comment you made to the 16-year-old high school girl whose friend was having pre-marital relations with her steady. It seems the girl asked her friend what she would do if she became pregnant. Her friend laughed and replied, "The pill never fails."

You said, and I quote: "I have received letters from other teen-age girls who also laughed and said, 'The pill never fails.' They stopped laughing when the doctor said, 'You are pregnant.'"

It is one thing to counsel a young girl against pre-marital sex. It is quite another thing to undermine the confidence that millions of women have in a well-proven contraceptive.

You strongly implied in your reply that the pill frequently fails to give contraceptive protection. I am sure you know, Ann Landers, that the pill is practically 100 per cent effective when taken properly.

Many anxiety-ridden women will find their faith in the pill shattered by your statement. Planned Parenthood Centers around the country are sure to be bombarded by calls as a result of your comment. We sincerely hope you will say something to correct this unhappy impression.—REV. DON C. SHAW, PLANNED PARENTHOOD, CHICAGO

DEAR REV. SHAW: I, too, have been bombarded with letters and calls—from Planned Parenthood members all over the country—and I'd like to set the record straight.

I am NOT opposed to married couples deliberately controlling the size of their families. I encourage birth control when it is not in conflict with religious training. And it is heartening to note that the outmoded concept that a woman has the moral obligation to produce as many children as "God sends her" has been abandoned by many contemporary religious leaders whose predecessors felt otherwise. My personal belief is that birth control is the only answer to the population explosion.

Your statement that the pill is practically 100 per cent effective when taken properly is correct. And this is the point I wish to emphasize. THE PROPER way to take the pill is under the supervision of a physician. You can be sure that the teen-agers who are taking the pill are not doing so under a physician's instruction.

Some teen-agers, and adults as well, are under the impression that the pill taken just before they go out will prevent conception for 24 hours. They are the ones who get pregnant. Moreover, the pill is not for everyone. In some instances the pill has produced serious side effects. This fact has been pointed out repeatedly by Dr. James L. Goddard, Commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration. Women with a history of tumors or clotting might be well advised to use other contraceptive devices. The decision should be made by a physician.

Giving advice is an awesome responsibility and I do not take it lightly. I have an obligation to my readers to make certain the counsel I give is correct. I would be failing my readers miserably if I did not alert them to the facts about the pill, and the facts are as I have stated them.

THE REV. AND MRS. JOHN Z. ANDREE

Farewell Reception Honors Rev. John Z. Andree Family

The Rev. and Mrs. John Z. Andree with their family, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Andree of Rochester, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Mann, Washington, D.C.; and Carol Andree; also, the Rev. Andree's brother, Howard Andree and his family of Celeron, were entertained for approximately three hundred and fifty members and friends of the First Church of the Nazarene on Friday evening. The affair was held in the Warren Area High School cafeteria, and was sponsored by the Church Board.

The Rev. Andree has served the Warren church for the past sixteen and a half years. He with his family will leave Warren after Easter to take up pastoral duties in Flint, Michigan.

A program arranged by Miss Verta Hite was announced by Charles Fuller and included duets by Mrs. Goerlick and Mrs. Ruby with Mrs. Elizabeth Huck at the piano. Miss Joyce McFarland was the author of a pageant based on the Pilgrim's Progress and entitled "Pilgrim John." Depicting the ministry of the Rev. Andree in Warren, a number of costumed young people participated. Mark McInturf, Sunday School Superintendent expressed the appreciation of the congregation for the pastor, and presented a check from the church, which was accepted with a brief speech by the Rev. Andree.

Before refreshments were served at a table decorated in pink, green and white, Norman Jefferson offered an invocation. Serving on committee for decorations were Mrs. Joyce Fuller, Mrs. Audine Goerlick, Mrs. Patricia Thompson; refreshments, Mrs. Pearl Sorensen, Mrs. Marie Heald, Mrs. Agnes McFarland, with Mrs. Lila Casler serving coffee and Mrs. Lucile Johnson, punch.

A birthday cake for the pastor was baked by Mrs. Sydney Haight. The Rev. Andree and son, Paul, were remembered with carnation boutonnières, and Mrs. Andree and the Misses Judy and Carol with orchid corsages.

Warner-Shaw Wedding Takes Place In Salamanca

The Salamanca EUB Church was the recent setting for the double ring wedding service at which Constance Gail Shaw and John Irving Warner exchanged their nuptial vows. The Rev. Glenn Reed, uncle of the bride, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Shaw of Frewsburg and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Warner of Clarendon.

Miss Cynthia Minnich of Randolph was the bride's only attendant. She wore a long dress of pale green organza over taffeta with darker green contrasts and a matching veiled floral headdress. Her flowers were yellow carnations in a corsage arrangement.

James Warner, brother of the groom, was the best man.

Venice lace adorned the bride's simple gown of white French crepe which was styled with a bateau neckline and three quarter length bell sleeves. The floor length skirt was accented with a lace trimmed chapel train. Her pillbox headpiece with lace appliques, secured her shoulder length veil of silk illusion and she carried a crescent of white carnations accented with greenery.

A dinner for the bridal party and immediate families followed at The Castle, Olean.

The couple honeymooned in Canada and will reside in Clarendon.

The bride is a graduate of Frewsburg Central High School and Doyle Beauty School. She is employed at Bigelow's Beauty Shop. Her husband served with the U.S. Army in Vietnam. He is employed by Pittsburgh - Des Moines in Warren, Pa.

Tidioute Post

Attends Dinner

The VFW Post 8803 of Tidioute held a dinner at K's Inn recently at which honored guests included the Junior Vice Commander Department of Pennsylvania and Mrs. Eugene Manfre of Warren; and, the District 19 Commander and Ladies Auxiliary President, Mr. and Mrs. Howard McKay of Brockway.

Fifty-eight members and guests attended. After dinner, a three tier wedding cake was presented to Mr. and Mrs. James Myers in honor of their fifty-third wedding anniversary. The Junior Vice Commander addressed those present on the subject of veterans programs.

Legion Auxiliary Hears Secretary From Heart Assoc.

Mrs. Rea Waxman, secretary of Warren County Heart Association, gave an interesting and informative talk on the heart to the members of the American Legion Auxiliary, Chief Conplanter Post Unit 135, at their recent monthly meeting.

A report was made by Mrs. Lola Walter that the essays "My Idea of a Patriotic Junior Citizen" were judged and prizes awarded at Beauty Junior High School at the ninth grade assembly as follows: 1st—Paula Schickler; 2nd, Judi Mader; 3rd Nancy King.

St. Joseph School awards went to Sharon Anthony, 1st; John Bonavita, 2nd; and Ann Muczynski, 3rd.

It was announced that the girl chosen to attend the Keystone Girls State is Dawn Rice of 5 Edgemont drive. She is being sponsored by the auxiliary and enrolled for the coming event in June.

Mrs. Ellen Valentine announced that the Portable X-Ray Schedule will be from April 10 to 14 for the public.

This year the State Convention will convene at Pittsburgh from July 19 to 25. The next meeting of the auxiliary will take place on April 11, when a tureen dinner will begin the evening.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Kitty Foy and Mrs. Estelle Mock.

LWV To Have Only One Meeting This Holy Week

A very good chance to get informed on vital matters is being offered to members of the League of Women Voters of the Warren Area tomorrow evening at 8:00 at the YWCA. Because this is Holy Week there will not be a Thursday morning unit this week.

Mrs. Harry Segel will bring League members up to date on National Continuing Responsibilities by reviewing the LWV position on these ever important issues:

Apportionment of State Legislatures; Support of apportionment of both houses of state legislatures substantially on population.

District of Columbia; Support of self-government and representation in Congress for citizens of the District of Columbia.

Loyalty-Security: Support of "common sense" protection for the individual under the federal loyalty-security programs; opposition to extension of such programs to nonsensitive positions.

Tax Rates: Opposition to constitutional limitations on tax rates.

Treaty Making: Opposition to constitutional changes that would limit the existing powers of the Executive and the Congress over foreign relations.

A Continuing Responsibility is a position of the League, a statement of League agreement, which the members wish to retain without expansion and upon which they wish to continue to act. Successful action, however, depends most of all on the understanding and enthusiasm of League members. These are all vital matters on which members must be informed in order to help bring about effective and wise action on the national scene.

League members are urged to attend this Tuesday evening unit meeting, the only one this year dealing with Continuing Responsibilities.

Comfort Quotient quiz
on winter willies.
It may show that you need help from Penelec

...for Comfort is our business! If you find your comfort isn't all it could be, help is as close as your mail box. Just mail coupon below. Now for the quiz:

Is your present heat for the birds?

- ☐ Our birds go south
- ☐ I don't know what happens to my heat once it goes up the chimney
- ☐ Yes

What does this look like to you?

- ☐ A butterfly
- ☐ An inkblot
- ☐ The grimy spots above our registers—caused by our dirty old combustion furnace that scatters soot all over, and keeps my wife in a flap

1?X#*(?)?#

What do you say when that dirty old combustion furnace goes on the blink in a blizzard?

- ☐ Aw, shucks
- ☐ CENSORED
- ☐ Next year, by gad, we'll have electric heat!

If you scored more than zero, you're overdue for Total Comfort with

Flameless Electric Heat

It's the happy heat for happy endings! Because electric heat ends fuel loss (no more up-the-chimney waste).

Ends furnace soot and grime (cuts cleaning to a next-to-nothing chore).

Ends chilly floors, uneven heat (you may fancy 69 degrees, or 96, but your anatomy will never have to suffer both at once).

Act now! Get up to $250 trade-in on your old equipment from Penelec.

Ends drafts, unsettling furnace noises, and ends sneezes, too (the kind that come from dryness caused by open flame).

Another thing, with a thermostat in every room, you can dial a temperature to suit yourself. In short, electric heat lets you begin a life of Total Comfort, for your insulation will serve for electric whole-house air conditioning, too. Sooner or later you'll be wanting both, so why not have them installed together?

Total Comfort costs much less than you may think! The "magic" cent per kilowatt hour is already here for preferred users, and rates keep falling, as other fuel costs climb. Mail the coupon—and get the facts. No obligation whatsoever.

Beverly P. August, Bride Of Richard L. Sine Saturday

Beverly P. August and Richard L. Sine were married on Saturday evening March 18, at 7:30 in St. Paul's United Church of Christ, Titusville, in the presence of approximately fifty guests. The Rev. Joseph Krabill of the church read the double ring rites.

Mrs. Barbara Wescoat provided traditional wedding music at the organ and vases of white carnations ornamented the altar.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. August, 9766 Pearson road, Middleport, N. Y., and the groom is the son of Mrs. Jack L. Sine, of 119 West Spruce street, Titusville, and the late Mr. Sine.

Escorted on the arm of her father, the bride wore a gown of white peau de soie, styled with batteau neckline, wrist length sleeves of lace which matched her graceful lace mantilla. She carried a nosegay of white carnations.

The sister of the bride, Miss Dianna August, was the maid of honor, and Miss Frances August of North Warren, a cousin of the bride, was the bridesmaid.

Best man was L. Lester Rickety of Warren, and the usher was Harry C. Miller of Franklin.

The mother of the bride chose a two piece brocade dress of turquoise and gold, and the mother of the groom was in a raspberry hand knit suit. Both wore corsages of pink carnations.

A reception for fifty guests was held in Collage Inn, Pleasantville, after the wedding service. Decorations were carried out in blue and white, Aides

Ali-We-Je Club Celebrates With Dinner

The March meeting of the Ali-We-Je Club was held in the Alice Wetmore Banquet Room in the YWCA at 6 p.m. Twenty-one members and a guest, Miss Jane Munn, sat down to a beautifully appointed "Green Table" to enjoy Irish Stew with corned beef, green salad, and a dessert of green ice cream and green topped cake.

The hostesses were gaily dressed in green hats and aprons. Frances Carlson managed the money box; Pearl Lund wielded the Shillalah; Edith Erickson, Florence Lund and Alfreda Lagerquist kept refills of rolls, coffee, and more and more stew flowing to satisfy the Irish appetites. During the meal the music box played Mother Machree, Danny Boy, My wild Irish Rose, and pianist Ethel Olsen played tunes.

Jane Munn entertained with several readings and told of the beautiful Ireland that tourists should never pass up when visiting the other side of the Atlantic.

A get-well card was signed by all members and mailed to either Baldensperger who is recuperating in the hospital from an illness of the past couple of weeks.

The vice president, Rachel Ralsor, had charge of the business meeting, at which the membership voted to contribute $50 to the YWCA.

A New You by Emily Wilkens Hats Are Top News

My hat's off to the latest fashion trend: hats are top news this Spring. The well-groomed, well-dressed female has always relished the glamorous feeling that comes when wearing a flattering chapeau.

Many young lovelies, still uninitiated, may ask: "Why a hat? I've never worn one."

I hastily reply that only by wearing a hat can you:

- + ACHIEVE an all-important head-to-toe coordinated look.
- + GAIN more height if you need it.
- + CAPTURE more face interest (incidentally, it's a saving grace for legs that are less than spectacular.)

Here are some clues for wearing hats with the greatest aplomb:

Don't get carried away with a "wear once" creation of flowers, ribbons and multi-colored veils. What may be a show-stopper in the Easter Parade will undoubtedly become a dust collector in your closet.

This year it's smart to "borrow" a shape from the men—the classic panama in natural felt or panama straw is a truly fashion-wise go-with-everything addition. Moreover, it readily accepts different ribbon bands to coordinate with your favorite costumes.

If Panama is the wrong locale for you, find another primary shape that flatters. Try on untrimmings hats to get the true fashion picture without any frills. Check in a full-length mirror to make sure the chapeau suits your stature.

New Hues

Almost every complexion responds to a natural beige color hat, providing it's neither too gray nor too yellow in cast. Most hair shades, too, are compatible with this kind of neutrality. You can't talk about hats without considering the faces they frame, so hurry for happier days, color on the lips is back "in"—thank goodness! The invisible from-the-eyes down look has finally vanished (forever, I hope).

Look for shades that are seemingly bright and intense yet toned down through a shimmer of silver. Bright clear colors go with your fresh white, blue, cherry, lemon or lime outfits. Be careful not to overdo your eyes—the painted look is just too, too much when wearing a hat.

Color-Cloues

With the symphony of makeup colors to choose from, you must be sure your cosmetics and chapeau make music together—no discords allowed! As a guide, an ideal spring color combination could be: hat in a versatile neutral shade; base a beige tone; eye shadow a hint of your eye color or dress color; lipstick a bright or delicate pastel—but definitely one with life in it.

Curly Do's

For real derring-do, wear your hair curly this Spring, in a smart short coil that's always perfect under hats. If you're standing pat with your current hairdo, remember long hair and hats don't really mix. You can tuck your hair up into a hat for a Garbo-ish effect, or pin it into a neat French twist. Nothing looks less chic than a hairdo that's too much for a hat.

Use your head, follow these tips, and THE NEW YOU will be the "grandest lady in the Easter Parade."

JUST FOR YOU: Cultivate the hat habit. It can be a life-saver when your hair isn't quite up to par. It's proper to wear an appropriate hat for all but the most formal occasions.

Strawbridge Circle Helps Children's Home

At the monthly meeting of the Robert Strawbridge Circle of the First Methodist Church for one of their projects, the group brought jams, jellies, soups, puddings, as a gift to the Smith Children's Home, Sheffield. A good supply was assembled.

A decision was made to remember a sick friend at the Warren State Hospital for Easter.

After a brief business session, conducted by Ione Niederlander, a Lenten worship period was presented by Florence Lund who used the 15th Chapter of the Gospel of John, 7 through 13, for her devotional talk which was followed by prayer.

Miss Betty Lyle provided an interesting and informative program as she showed her colored slides and related her experiences on her 1965 trip to the Holy Land and other places.

Mrs. Ethel Johnson and her committee arranged for the fellowship hour which followed.

The Halls Of Ivy

Murray J. Foreman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Foreman of 609 Conewango avenue, will be traveling on tour with the Oberlin Choir from March 24 through April 2. The choir will go this year to seven mid-western states: Cedar Falls, Iowa; Dayton and Toledo, Ohio; Edwardsville and Evanston, Illinois; Louisville, Kentucky; St. Louis, Missouri; Minneapolis, Minnesota; and Wisconsin Rapids, Wisconsin.

The annual spring concert tour is under the direction of Robert Fountain who has led the choir since 1948, became dean of the Oberlin College Conservatory of Music in 1965. Throughout 1966-67 Oberlin College is observing the Conservatory's centennial as a division of the college. Weekly music programs over some 35 fine arts radio stations in the country, and appearances this spring in New York City and Cleveland by faculty artists and student ensembles are broadening the observance to other parts of the country.

Bucknell University, at Lewisburg, Pennsylvania, has listed the names of 507 students, 20 per cent of the undergraduate enrollment, who have attained the Dean's List for academic achievement during the first semester. An average of at least 3.2 out of a possible 4.0 is required for the Dean's List.

Among those honored is Alan T. Chase, son of Mr. and Mrs. Keith E. Chase, Maple Place, North Warren. In his Junior year of studies, Mr. Chase is majoring in Chemical Engineering. He graduated from Warren Area High School in 1964.

Hints From Heloise

Bathroom Carpeting

DEAR FOLKS:

Here's a good hint for those of you who plan to recarpet your bathroom.

You know how hard it is to cut the carpet exactly the right size and shape?

All I did when I removed my old carpet was to lay it face down on TOP of the piece of new carpet, which was also turned upside down. In other words, the backing was face up on both pieces.

I just marked around the old carpet with a pencil and had a perfect pattern that fit that old bathroom exactly.

A little word of caution: If your old carpet has shrunk in one place, be sure to allow for it.

When I carpeted my bath with the new carpet, I allowed one inch around every outside edge for shrinkage and just let it kind of curl up over the baseboard.

Because . . .

I learned the hard way that bathroom carpets seem to shrink because of the steam etc. Mine had shrunk two inches on one side.

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Here is an idea for women whose husbands work the night shift.

Why not put hot casseroles into a vacuum bottle for a good hot meal?

Or if you have one of the large vacuum bottles, put a couple of small pieces of your cooked chicken into it.

The casseroles or chicken will remain steaming hot and most for several hours

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, FOR MONDAY, MARCH 20, 1967.

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—You may have some "extras" to handle, but adapting yourself to circumstances—even unusual ones—could enable you to profit in a very heart-warming way. Make decisions with the future in mind.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)—If you find yourself running into more snags than usual, immediately check, and re-check if need be. There is no sense in repeating errors or clinging to previous miscalculations. Your own fine mind should tell you this.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—A sense of proportion and thorough knowledge of your assignments and areas of maneuvering will be important now. With good will and good cheer, two fine Gemini traits, you should fare well.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—To be stressed this day: Coordination, perception, accuracy. A continuing search for truth will turn up many unusual advantages and help prepare the way for improved status.

LEO (July 24 to August 23)—Your planetary influences are improving now, but you could still fall short of the mark if not careful. Study new trends, suggestions, but don't reject what you don't understand—ask about it.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—Some planetary restrictions now. But that does not mean that the day is "lost." By emphasizing the Virgoan stamina and inner reserves of strength, you can hurdle most obstacles. Make concessions where it seems the best thing to do.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)—If you don't get all the cooperation you had anticipated, don't worry about it. Try working things out another way. Many answers are still uncovered but, eventually, unanimity of purpose will be achieved.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 23)—This day needs team players as well as individualists. Whether to work with others or "go it alone" is up to your keen discretion. Do your best, but don't scatter energies.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21)—Better advantages than you may anticipate at first. A good period in which to put new life into going projects. This does not mean doing away with old, worthwhile methods, but to stimulate interest through something new.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—Excellent Saturn influences make this day a day for BIG accomplishment—even if only in the preparatory stage of new ventures, which can be as equally important as the actual doing. Emphasize your versatility.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—Observe small differences of opinion, "little" telltale trends. They could help prevent costly errors, having to retrace your steps. If all is well, you have the "green light" to go ahead.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—Don't try to reach for the unreasonable, but do give painstaking effort, not only to routine endeavors, but to the "extras" which may come your way. This is a day when constructive action will pay off.

YOU BORN TODAY are extremely industrious, sympathetic to the downtrodden and capable in emergencies. In your work, you always think carefully before you act, so rarely make mistakes. Your endurance and staying powers are great, so you tend at times, to over-tax yourself. Learn to relax more. You have an outgoing personality and use psychology in everyday dealings, which helps you to get along with all types of persons. You have an intelligent bent, and are markedly inventive; could succeed as an educator, lawyer, writer, or musician. Birthdate of: Henrik Ibsen, Norwegian dramatist; Charles W. Eliot, American educator, author.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

(c) 1967 The Chicago Tribune

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

ENFORCED BED REST
Children have a sixth sense when it comes to illness. They remain quiet when sick but never hesitate to get up when they feel better. It is difficult to keep them in bed and parents are disturbed when the tyke fails to follow doctor's orders.

The 7-year-old daughter of a British physician had her appendix out and wanted to go home on the fourth day after the operation. The surgeon refused permission on the basis that bed rest was needed for proper healing of the scar. On the same evening, Dr. Hugh Jolly entered the ward and found his daughter had just won first place for bouncing up highest off the bed.

Dr. Jolly decided to investigate the need for enforced bed rest after his child's experience but failed to find scientific evidence for this practice. He then analyzed the surgical records of 734 children treated as day patients who were not confined to bed against their wishes. Many had a hernia repaired and the parents were told to bring them back to the hospital on the fifth day after surgery. There were no complications and three-quarters of the youngsters had removed their own sutures.

He then studied two groups of children with respiratory infections. There was no difference in the duration of fever or of the illness between those kept in bed and those allowed to be up. The same results were obtained in tykes with rheumatic fever provided early ambulation was carefully supervised.

In some conditions bed rest is essential. A boy with a certain type of transitory arthritis of the hip is an example. In contrast, parents should not interfere when the child feels ill enough to go to bed. The youngster who remains in bed when he could be up is the exception to the rule.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

TOMORROW: A Common Complaint.

STOMACH IN REVERSE
K. P. A. writes: What causes my stomach to back up on me at night?

REPLY: If your stomach goes into reverse early in the evening you can blame something you ate or a poorly functioning gall bladder. Distress in the early hours of the morning, when the stomach is empty, suggests ulcer. If discomfort is related to change in posture only, a diaphragmatic hernia may be responsible. May I suggest X-rays?

IN 'RUN FOR YOUR LIFE'

Dina Merrill makes a guest appearance with series star Ben Gazzara in "East of the Equator" on NBC Television Network's color dramatic series "Run for Your Life," tonight.

Monday's TV Highlights

IRON HORSE at 7:30 p.m. on Ch. 7 presents "Death by Triangulation," with guests Monte Markham and Gini Perreau. Ben Calhoun wins the $50,000 he needs for his railroad in a poker game, but the losing players steal it back.

SCHIZOPHRENIA: THE SHATTERED MIRROR is an examination of this type of mental illness at 8:30 p.m. on Ch. 3, WPSX-TV. Produced largely within mental hospitals, it probes the world of actual patients undergoing tests, conversing with therapists, and withdrawing repeatedly within themselves. It documents the daily life of Rene, a young ballet student on a tightrope between recovery and relapse.

PERRY COMO'S MUSIC HALL at 9 p.m. on Chs. 6 and 12 has Perry playing host to comedian Woody Allen and singer Connie Stevens. Easter music will be featured.

FELONY SQUAD at 9 p.m. on Ch. 7 guest stars Ricardo Montalban as head of an aircraft security force involved in a $1 million plot for the theft of a secret industrial device in "A Blueprint for Dying." AN EVENING WITH... Eddy

HOW MUCH DOES ELECTRIC HEAT REALLY COST?

Okay, so it's a terrible pun! But then, three times the cost of Gas is a terrible price to have to pay to heat your home! Even then, it might be worth it if electric heat were three times as good as Gas heat, or three times as convenient, or even three times as warm.

But it isn't. It's simply about three times as expensive.

And what do you get for this extra charge of electricity? Cold basements for one thing. Cold floors for another. And you get that "bottled up" feeling that comes with non circulating warmed over air, day after day. Of course, you get the fun of playing "thermostat roulette." Any number can play. Just turn off the heat in every room as you leave it. This conserves that precious heat and keeps your heating bill down to about three times the cost of Gas heat.

You'll get a charge out of electric heat, all right... every month! But, if you're like most people, you heat your home... all of it... with fresh air Gas heat. That makes you eligible to play another game. It's called—Think of all the things you can do with the money you save with Gas! Everybody wins.

THINK OF ALL THE THINGS YOU CAN DO WITH THE MONEY YOU SAVE. GAS MAKES THE BIG DIFFERENCE.

THE WEEK IN FINANCE

Investors Confident About 1967 Economy

By THOMAS E. MULLANEY

NEW YORK—Investors are apparently confident that the United States economy will right itself this year and resume its progress, stimulated by a variety of federal actions. Wall Street believes that the Administration's 6 per cent tax surcharge is a dead issue, despite Washington's dogged public adherence to the proposal.

That, at least, is the interpretation that many market analysts placed on the stock market's buoyant performance in near-record trading last week. Stock averages reached new highs for 1967, then eased a bit.

The market developed a surprisingly strong and broad upturn in the face of a heavy flow of adverse news about industrial production, housing starts and auto sales. The decline of 2.1 points in the federal reserve production index last month was particularly disturbing.

The investing community, looking ahead with high hopes, chose to take encouragement from the swift congressional action on restoring the 7 per cent investment tax credit, the cut in the British bank rate from 6.5 to 6 per cent and the conviction that the government will move further to ease credit and bolster demand in various sectors of the domestic economy.

Cuts in the discount rate and in the prime lending rate of banks may be imminent. Administration sources continue to present an optimistic front on the economic situation, although their actions seem to indicate concern.

The latest evidence was the release on Friday of an additional $791 million in frozen federal spending authority for highways, mortgage assistance, flood projects, farm home loans and education grants.

President Johnson has now reactivated about one-fourth of the $5.2 billion in federal spending deferred last fall as an anti-inflation measure.

The Administration's prompt and forceful action to counteract this year's economic slowdown contrasts with its stand-pat posture early last year when critics said it should have been taking fiscal steps to offset inflationary pressures.

Meanwhile, bond prices continued to rise and yields declined further, despite the heavy volume of new financing. The bond market's action was also linked to the accumulating evidence of slowdown in the economy and government moves to cope with it.

If the economic picture does brighten and the proposed tax increases are not enacted, there could be a significant turn-about in the bond market later this year, with interest rates rising again.

As the first quarter nears its end, it has become obvious that the economy has slowed somewhat faster than expected three months ago.

Economists agree that a major worry is the heavy volume of inventories. And the biggest disappointment so far has been the failure of retail sales to offset the drag of declining industrial production.

It will take increased consumer confidence to get sales rolling again. And some economists, such as Pierre Rinfret, have been advocating cuts in excise taxes to prod consumer spending.

"Get the corporations to promise that the cut in excise taxes will be passed along to consumers and you cut the prices that people pay for durable goods by the amount of the excise taxes," commented Rinfret. "It is a tax cut in durable goods where it is badly needed to stimulate demand."

Easter Week sales will be watched to determine whether consumers, who have been increasing their savings, are disposed toward more confident spending.

Retail sources reported last week that Easter sales so far were only moderate compared with last year's volume. Some say that stronger results are being prevented by a selling season three weeks shorter this year and an erratic weather pattern around the country.

The weather and work stoppages have been blamed also for some of the sluggish auto sales and production cutbacks in other industries, but the extent of this is difficult to assess.

Merchants are now projecting sales gains of 2 to 3 per cent in the March-April period. Including stores not operating last year the gross gain is estimated at 5 per cent.

Sales in the durables line have been more affected than in the soft lines because of continuing consumer concern over Vietnam, rising prices and fear of a tax surcharge later this year.

The economy may be poised at a crucial point. If the next few weeks show no significant increase in retail activity—in auto sales particularly—an inventory "correction" of serious proportions could well ensue, injecting new sluggishness into business operations.

There could be a spate of production cutbacks and employe layoffs at auto, appliance and other factories this spring unless there are dramatic sales increases in these lines.

William McChesney Martin, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, underscored the seriousness of the inventory problem in testimony before the house banking committee this week. He labeled it the most troubling element in today's economic situation.

Martin told Congress that the economy was slowing down, but said, "I don't mean we're in a recession." He added: "Let's say we're at 20 to 30 miles an hour and I hope we can get up to 40 or 50 miles an hour before long." At this time a year ago, some economists maintain, the economy was roaring along around 70 miles an hour.

There was a big slowdown in inventory accumulation in January after the sharp increase during December. The January buildup was about $950 million—about half the December accumulation and in line with the average monthly gain of $1 billion in the first nine months of 1966.

Dr. Martin Gainsbrugh, chief economist for the National Industrial Conference Board, believes that some inventory liquidation is already occurring in the civilian sector of the economy.

"The first quarter gross national product," he said, "looks like it will turn out about the same as in the fourth quarter of 1966. The only reason we are not going up in this quarter is that inventory accumulation is going on at about half the pace of the preceding three months."

Gainsbrugh said that he still holds to "the thesis of further expansion for the economy in 1967."

Irregular Course Seen in O-C Market

(c) N. Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK—Against a background of uncertain economic news, stocks pursued an irregular course last week on the American Stock Exchange and the over-the-counter market.

Electromagnetic Industries rose 2 1/2 points.

Villager dropped 7 1/2 despite higher earnings for 1966.

Other advances during the week on the over-the-counter market were Acme Visible Records, up 4; Pako 3 1/2; Fischer Scientific 6; Anheuser Busch 2 3/4; Memorax 13 1/2 and Harper & Row 2.

Declines were Smith Industries, 4 1/4; C. R. Bard 3 1/2; Barnes Hinds 3 3/4; C. G. Conn 4 3/8; Handy & Harmon 6 1/2; Barden 2; Blue Belle 2 1/4 and Iowa Beef Packers 4 1/2.

With several four million plus days, volume on the American Stock Exchange amounted to 22,410,790, only slightly below the 24,339,180 shares traded last week.

Coffee Mat, a recent favorite on the over-the-counter market was down 1 1/2 last week on profit taking. The company plans to list its shares on the American Stock Exchange.

U.S. Truck Lines was up 2 1/2 after reporting a net of $4.30 a share last year compared with $3.61 for 1965.

Another gainer was World Airways, Inc., which jumped 4 points on an increase in first quarter earnings. The company plans to seek listing soon on the New York Stock Exchange.

The National Quotation Board's index of 35 industrial issues on the over-the-counter market advanced 2.75 over the previous week to close at 274.88.

An advance was also posted by the American Stock Exchange's index of stock prices. It closed last week at $17.33, up 21 cents from the week before.

Bank issues were quiet but prices firmed. First National City was up 3/8; Manufacturers and Chemical were each up 1 point.

Life insurance stocks were mostly steady. Connecticut General was down 2 and National Life 2 1/2. Prices firmed in the fire and casualty group. Paul Revere, a major holder of Avco, was up 14.

On the American Stock Exchange the volume leader for the week was Nuclear Corp. on a turnover of 605,100 shares. It closed at 3, up 1/2 point. Wider movers included AMK, up 10 1/2 at 35; Vernitron, down 5 1/2 at 28 1/2; Cubic Corp. up 4 1/2 at 22 1/4, and Kin-Ark Oil, up 1 1/4 at 4 1/2.

State's PIDA Is Funded

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shafer has signed a $15 million supplemental appropriation to enable the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority to remain in business for the remainder of the fiscal year.

"I am extremely grateful to our legislators for fast action on this extremely critical appropriation," Shafer said in a statement accompanying the signing. "PIDA ran out of funds at the end of last year and would have been unable to provide loans to attract industry to the state for six months had this legislation not passed."

The original PIDA appropriation for the current fiscal year was $23.5 million. The $15 million supplement was obtained by borrowing from the State Employees Retirement Fund. The law requires the money be returned after July 1.

Shafer said the $15 million would permit PIDA to provide loans for 20 new industrial development projects in the state. Since 1963, the authority has provided loans for 145 industrial projects.

Shell Oil's Income For '66 a Record

Shell Oil Company's consolidated net income last year was a record $255.2 million, or $4.19 a share, an increase of 9 per cent over 1965, the company's 1966 Annual Report issued last week said. Total revenues, including consumer excise and sales taxes, amounted to $3,366 million, a rise of 8.4 per cent. Capital expenditures of $564 million were the largest in the company's history.

In the letter to shareholders in the report Richard C. McCurdy, president, said the general economy was expected to continue to expand this year, but at a somewhat slower pace. He said an increase in total domestic demand for petroleum approaching 4 per cent and a slightly larger gain for automotive gasoline seem probable.

Allegheny's Trade Up 20 Per Cent

BRADFORD — Allegheny Airlines served 4,913 passengers during February at Bradford-McKean County Airport, up 20 per cent from the February 1966 total of 4,078, Harry Minich, Customer Service Manager, announced yesterday.

Boardings of air mail, freight and express rose from 112,229 pounds during February 1966 to 117,967 pounds last month.
